1983 Nellie massacre reports

One blames it on poll imposition, other doesn't

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Guwahati

File picture of a family displaced after the Nellie violence in 1983 | x

THE Assam government on Tuesday tabled the reports of two probe panels on the large-scale violence during the peak of the anti-immigrant agitation, including the 1983 Nellie massacre, which successive governments chose to sit on.

Over 2,000 people, most of them immigrant Bengali-speaking Muslims, were killed on February 18, 1983 in the small town of Nellie in Central Assam's Morigaon district.

The two reports held contradictory views on the violence amid assembly polls during President's Rule in 1983.

The Tewari Commission, officially constituted by the then CM Hiteswar Saikia of the Congress, said the violence had no 'communal colour'. "The decision to hold the elections cannot be blamed for the outbreak of the violence of 1983," said the commission, headed by retired IAS officer Tribhuvan Prasad Tewary. It held the All Assam Students' Union (AASU) and Asom Gana Sangram Parishad (AGSP) "primarily responsible for launching the stir and for its consequences".

The 'unofficial' Justice TU Mehta Commission, formed by Mukti Jujaru Sanmilan and members of the anti-foreigners' agitation, attributed the reason for the violence to the imposition of elections against the wishes of the people. It said the situation was not conducive to hold elections and put the blame on incumbent central government, Election Commission, "politicians who wanted to capture power by hook or crook", the then Assam governor and his bureaucrats.

The Mehta commission report said the Election Commission could have decided against holding the polls to stop the violence but it did not. Also, the report said, the polls were held without correcting the electoral rolls. "The evidence produced before the Commission clearly brings out the issues of foreigners, language, etc have been agitating the minds of the people for the last several decades, exploding into violence."

Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma said although the Tewary report was tabled in 1987, only one copy was sent to the Speaker. The Mehta report was tabled in the House for the first time on Tuesday.

Christian officer's sack upheld

UDAYAN KISHORE @ New Delhi

CALLING a Christian army officer's alleged refusal to enter his regimental temple's sanctum sanctorum as the "grossest kind of indiscipline", a Supreme Court bench of Chief Justice of India Surya Kant and Justice Joymala Bagchi on Tuesday upheld his termination.

Earlier, the Delhi High Court had sanctioned Samuel Kamalesan's termination on grounds of 'indiscipline'.

Kamalesan was commissioned in 2017 into the 3rd Cavalry Regiment.

The SC bench, on a plea by the officer against his termination, said while he may be an outstanding officer, "he is definitely a misfit for the Army... Leaders have to lead by example. You are insulting your troops."

The bench pointed out that the officer had ignored even the advice of a local pastor, who counselled him and said entering a temple would not violate his faith. "You cannot have your private understanding of what your religion permits. That too in uniform," it said.

Senior advocate Gopal Sankaranarayanan, appearing for Kamalesan, said the appellant's fundamental right to practise a religion under Article 25 cannot be taken away. "Where in the Christian faith is entering a temple barred?" Justice Bagchi asked.

"In your team, there are Sikh soldiers... (for whom) there is a gurdwara. A gurdwara is one of the most secular places. Is his tone and tenor not insulting all soldiers? We are surprised he doesn't even follow the advice of the pastor," CJI Surya Kant said.

ARMY: HE WAS ADAMANT

The Army had said the officer repeatedly refused to attend mandatory regimental parades and senior officers made "multiple attempts" to counsel him, but to no avail

Arunachal tangle continues between India and China

JAYANTH JACOB @ New Delhi

Pema Wangjom Thongdok

CHINA on Tuesday rejected allegations that an Indian woman from Arunachal Pradesh was harassed by immigration officials during a layover at Shanghai airport, insisting that officers acted in accordance with the law.

Pema Wangjom Thongdok, a UK-based Indian citizen, said her three-hour layover turned into an ordeal after immigration personnel declared her passport "invalid" because it listed Arunachal Pradesh as her birthplace.

Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesperson Mao Ning said Thongdok had not been subjected to any compulsory measures, detention or harassment. Mao also reiterated China's claims over Arunachal Pradesh, prompting a strong pushback from India, with the MEA asserting it remains an integral and inalienable part of India.

On Thongdok's experience, the MEA said Chinese authorities had still not been able to explain their actions, which it described as violation of international conventions.

₹7 CR HEIST

THE prime accused in the Rs 7.11 crore robbery, R Ravi, who headed the operations team, was allegedly absconding in a murder case reported in the Varthur police station limits in 2018, the police said, adding it was revealed during questioning in the heist case.

Ravi (33), a resident of Banasawadi, earlier ran a travel agency. His brother Rakesh has also been arrested in the robbery case, and their father is a retired serviceman.

According to senior cops it is suspected that Ravi was part of the gang rivalry in which rowdy-sheeter Challa Kumar was hacked to death on May 17, 2018 near Kodathi Gate. Ravi was associated with Nagaraj, who had a professional rivalry with Kumar. To kill him, Nagaraj convinced Kumar's car driver to install a GPS device in the vehicle to track him. When Kumar was heading to his second wife's house, Nagaraj and his associates allegedly intercepted him on the way after monitoring him through GPS and killed him with machetes. Six accused were arrested.

Ravi confessed to his involvement in the earlier murder case. Meanwhile, another accused in the heist case, Dinesh P (30), is found to have involved in a molestation case and an accident case.

CMS staff went for lunch after robbery

The negligence of the CMS staff hindered the investigation. The three CMS staff members, who were abandoned near the Dairy Circle flyover, went for lunch instead of alerting the police. The police have taken four staff members into custody. City Police Commissioner Seemant Kumar Singh told reporters that several violations by the CMS company were found, and the negligence by the staff raised suspicion about their role. The police were alerted nearly two hours after the heist. The staff, who are outsourced, informed their supervisors instead of immediately contacting the police. Three of them reached the Siddapura police station around 4 pm. Initially, it was suspected that the three had been kidnapped, but during questioning, they claimed they had gone for lunch.

Out of the nine accused arrested in the case, one of them is 36-year-old Xavier alias M Prajan (29), a former CMS employee. Xavier was among the first to be arrested by the police. In an interesting twist, another person named Xavier, who is in his mid-twenties, attempted suicide after his photograph was shown in television channels instead of the accused's photo.

The incident came to light after his family approached a police station. Singh has advised media personnel to exercise caution. He also added that an investigation will be conducted to determine whether the accused Xavier had submitted the other Xavier's photograph at the time of his recruitment at CMS.

CCB seizes ecstasy pills, MDMA worth ₹23.74 cr from Nigerian

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

THE Anti-Narcotics Wing of the Central Crime Branch (CCB) busted a synthetic-drug peddling network by raiding the premises of a Nigerian national in Bagaluru.

The CCB sleuths seized 11 kg 640 gram of MDMA crystals, 1,040 ecstasy pills, 2 kg 235 gram of raw materials, valued at approximately Rs 23.74 crore from the house where the accused, N Ejike Nzegwu, 42, was staying.

The seized drugs were stored to sell during the New Year celebrations. A report has been submitted with the Bagaluru police, to act against the owner of the house for failing to adhere to legal requirements while renting out for foreign nationals.

Nzegwu entered India in 2017 on a business visa via Sri Lanka, and after his visa expired, he continued to stay illegally in Bagaluru. His wife, too, was arrested for overstaying in the country and was sent to a detention centre. The couple's three children are staying in Nigeria.

An NDPS case was registered against him in 2019 in the city, and he was sent to prison. After being released, he again engaged in drug peddling, and in 2020, another case under the NDPS Act and the Foreigners Act was registered against him at the Konanakunte Police Station. After coming out of the jail, he shifted to Chennai and was arrested there again. From there he went to Andhra Pradesh and was even caught there by the police. He was in judicial custody till 2024 and then came to Bengaluru.

"The accused was not selling the drugs to consumers but to drug traffickers mostly from African countries. He was reportedly getting drugs from Delhi and other north Indian states. He was obtaining bank accounts of some African nationals returning back to their native countries after their visa period. For every bank account, he was paying Rs 25,000. These account numbers were used as mule accounts for the other traffickers to send him the money," said an officer.

2 SIs and 5 others held in D'gere for robbing gold

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Davanagere

TWO sub-inspectors were among seven persons arrested in Davangere on charges of gold robbery. Four were arrested on Monday and the rest on Tuesday.

The accused had allegedly threatened a jeweller and robbed him of gold and jewellery past midnight on Monday. The PSIs, who had been transferred from Haveri district to the Davanagere Eastern Zone IGP's office, were on duty when they were arrested. It is alleged that the PSIs, Malappa Chippalakatti and Praveen Kumar, had robbed gold bars and jewellery from Vishwanath Arkasali, who hails from Karwar. Vishwanath bought gold bullion from gold traders in Davanagere and make jewellery for them.

Just after midnight on November 24, the two SIs, who had been following the jeweller, accosted him at the Davanagere bus stand. Vishwanath was waiting to board a 12.30 am bus to Karwar via Hubballi when the police officers held him by the collar and forced him into the police jeep parked outside the bus stand. The SIs took him to the KTJ Nagar police station in the police jeep, and from there, they took him in their car. Though Vishwanath pleaded with the officers, saying he only earned his wages by making gold ornaments, they did not listen. Threatening him, they got hold of the 76 gm of gold bars and a 2.15 gm baby ring from him. When Vishwanath asked how he could believe whether they were police officers, they flashed their official ID cards. They later dropped him back at the bus-stand.

Vishwanath went to Karwar, but returned to Davanagere later on Monday to file a complaint at the KTJ Nagar police station. A case was registered and an investigation was conducted. PSIs Malappa Chippalakatti and Praveen Kumar were arrested. Two jewellers from Davanagere, Satish Revankar from Vinayak Nagar and Nagaraj Revankar from Sirsi, were arrested on charges of providing information and aiding in the theft. Three others arrested, Dundappa Channappa Sampagavi, Nagesh Mallappa Malagol and Namadev, are said to be accomplices of the sub-inspectors.

The police also seized the car and a fake pistol used in the crime. Eastern Zone IGP Dr Ravikanthe Gowda told TNIE, "The accused were arrested late Monday night and taken into custody. An FIR has been registered at the KTJ Nagar police station and the accused will be produced before court."

SP Uma Prashant said, "Four people, including two PSIs, were arrested Monday night and interrogated in the case. On Tuesday, three more people were arrested, taking the total to seven. A DySP will conduct an impartial investigation into the case."

2 MORE COPS HELD IN EXTORTION CASE

Bengaluru: Two constables from JP Nagar police station were arrested by the police for allegedly extorting Rs 10,300 from a couple. The constables, Basavaraj and Gurudutt were suspended. On November 1, a couple was sitting in a car near the BSNL office compound in JP Nagar. The two constables, who were on patrol, approached the couple, questioned them, and asked them to come to the police station. However, without taking them to the station, the constables midway demanded Rs 40,000 from them, threatening to book a case and seize the car if they refused. After requests, they agreed to take Rs. 10,300 and let them free, police said. The couple later filed a complaint at the JP Nagar police station. This is the third case in one week where policemen were arrested. While a constable attached to Govindapura station was arrested for his alleged involvement in the daylight robbery of Rs 7.11 crore, a police constable attached to the Kolar district police was arrested for allegedly kidnapping a private company CEO. ENS

3 out of 3k cyber crime cases involve kids: Experts

RASHMI PATIL @Bengaluru

REVEALING alarming figures involving children in cyber crimes, Shivarathna S, inspector of Cyber Crime, Karnataka State Police Training School, Channapatna, said, "In a month, when we register 3,000 cases of cyber crime, it involves at least three children either as victims or accused."

At a panel discussion -- The Circle of Safety -- organised by Parihar of Bengaluru City Police on on Tuesday, she said, "While these children unknowingly become victims or accused in cyber crime, we have noticed a wide gap in spreading awareness among children by educational institutions and parents at home. There is no awareness about online safety among children. Restricting children from using mobile phone or social media will not help, parents and teachers must tell the adverse impact it will have on them. Just like the CBSE board has been creating awareness about sugar consumption and its impact among children, it is high time that they take some serious steps to create awareness about online safety, IT Act, Juvenile Justice Act 2015, POCSO Act 2012."

Citing some cases, she said, "In the recent past, there is an increase in the number of cases where children become victims to cyber bullying or they are accused because they are not aware that it is an offence. There are cases of cyber stalking, morphing videos especially of female students and sharing pornographic content on various social media groups."

Rathna highlighted that there must be conscious social media usage among everybody so that children will learn the same from teachers and parents. "It is a dangerous trend that most children use social media due to peer pressure. There are no strict regulations on the age of the user on social media. Children can enter fake date of birth and age to create an account on social media. Since social media platforms are a money-making medium, there are no restrictions on data sharing, including photos, on the internet across the globe. There is a need to help them understand not to share private photos or data on the internet and keeping the profile private by making changes in the settings," she said.

Another panellist, Nagasimha Rao, child rights activist, said, "Teachers must create a sense of ownership among children in schools. Only then, issues like cyber bullying, corporal punishment and more can be addressed at schools."

FLIES AND FUMES

Upa Lokayukta Justice K N Phaneendra (green blazer) inspects the Lingadheeranahalli Solid Waste Management Plant | EXPRESS

AFTER UPA LOKAYUKTA VISIT, RESIDENTS NEAR SWM PLANT GET RELIEF

Govt rejects leachate treatment plant proposal

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

FLIES continue to haunt residents in the vicinity of Lingadheeranahalli Solid Waste Management Plant, swarming into homes and outside, and forcing people to stay indoors. This is just one of the many serious issues for which no solutions have been found. The government has rejected the proposal sent by Bengaluru Solid Waste Management Limited (BSWML) to approve the tender to construct a leachate treatment plant.

This was brought to the notice of Upa Lokayukta Justice KN Phaneendra when he visited the plant on Monday to follow up on measures taken by BSWML authorities, to comply with directions issued by him after his last visit.

The authorities informed Justice Phaneendra that a proposal was sent to the state government to construct a leachate treatment plant to address the issue of leachate, which is being directly let into open drains and is polluting the area. The Upa Lokayukta had taken up the issue suo motu, but the state government rejected it.

Residents narrated their woes to Justice Phaneendra, saying they have to stay indoors, and cannot have any outdoor activities due to the swarms of flies. Most of them suffer from breathing issues and chest pain because of severe air pollution due to the plant. There is also the overpowering stench and leachate. Some steps have been taken to comply with his directions, like disposing of old waste.

The Upa Lokayukta also ordered fixing of meshes for windows and doors to keep out flies, which find their way in despite flycatchers being kept. He also directed BSWML authorities to organise a medical camp for residents, and convene a meeting once a month to hear their grievances and address them.

Justice Phaneendra also directed that the Range Forest Officer be impleaded as a respondent to the case as the BM Kaval reserved forest has been allegedly encroached for the solid waste management plant.

He directed the chief general manager and chief engineer, BSWML, and environment officers to submit a report after addressing issues raised by the residents.

Another flyover to connect Ballari Rd, Manyata

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

THE Greater Bengaluru Authority (GBA) will construct a 1.4 km flyover connecting Esteem Mall Junction, Ballari Road and Manyata Tech Park to decongest traffic on Hebbal road, and the project will be taken up by the Bangalore Development Authority (BDA). "To facilitate smooth traffic movement from the Outer Ring Road–KR Puram side (Manyata Tech Park Road) directly to Ballari Road near Esteem Mall without entering the Hebbal Junction, the Bangalore Development Authority (BDA) has proposed the construction of the 1.4 km-long flyover. Discussions in this regard have already been held with various departments, and steps will be taken to implement the project at the earliest, as per BDA officials," a release from the GBA stated.

BDA officials told GBA Chief Commissioner M Maheshwar Rao, who was conducting an inspection of the stretch on Tuesday, that the flyover will be constructed on the stretch. Rao instructed them to complete the construction of the new "loop" at Hebbal flyover in 15 days and to open it for vehicular traffic.

During his inspection, Rao said BDA has already completed the work of the flyover coming into the city from KR Puram and opened it for traffic. At the same time, the work on the loop connecting the new and old flyovers is in progress.

"The first girder has already been installed for the new loop and concrete work is in progress. Instructions have been given to complete the pending works soon by installing the remaining two girders," Rao said. He also directed officials to address footpath and road asphalting issues. He noticed that the footpath next to Hebbal Lake is damaged in some places, and instructed officials to repair it. He told them to remove a fallen pole and waste from the roadside. He said milling work on the existing flyover should be completed and asphalting work taken up soon. He visited various places in RMV 2nd Stage and Basaveshwara Layout in Hebbal and told officials to take up asphalting of roads connecting arterial and sub-arterial roads. Tunnel Rd may cost ₹70Kcr, civil society groups to oppose

SAVE Bengaluru Committee, a civil society group, lashed out at the State government for pushing the controversial twin tunnel project that costs Rs 42,000 crore.

The members claim the overall estimation for the North-South and East-West project is likely to reach over Rs 70,000 crore. The members urged the government to invest the same amount on a mass transit system like Metro Rail or Bangalore Metro Transport Corporation (BMTC).

They also criticized the BJP for not coming on to the streets against the project, and stated that BJP's double standards stand exposed as its central leadership is not doing enough to stop the project, and state leaders are taking a soft approach to the issue.

Addressing a press conference here on Tuesday, Shashikumar G, convener, Save Bangalore Committee, said the project is unscientific. As per the report, only 1,800 car passengers can be accommodated, as against 69,000 passengers on a Metro and 1.75 lakh passengers in BMTC buses. "The project is not only a waste of money but also impacts the environment," said Shashikumar.

He added that a Special Purpose Vehicle (SPV) called Bengaluru Smart Infrastructure Limited (B-Smile) has been created that will execute the project and raise a loan of Rs 9,303 crore for the project, and Rs 10,619 crore will have to be pumped in by the agency, and it will be allowed to toll the stretch for the next 40 years. "The project, which is now shown as Rs 42,000 crore, may be estimated at Rs 70,000 crore later, and this will be a burden. Instead, the amount should be used for Metro and BMTC," he said.

The members also stated that the Directorate of Urban Land Transport (DULT) also opposed the feasibility report of the tunnel network, stating that the project does not comply with the Comprehensive Mobility Plan.

Shashikumar also lashed out at the opposition BJP and JDS, stating that BJP is pretending to oppose the project, while HD Kumaraswamy of JDS has backed it.

"Both BJP and JDS have become protectors of this plan designed to cut open Bengaluru's underbelly. Hence, to oppose the move, civil society groups will come under a single banner on November 30 at SCM House near the corporation, to urge all citizens to stall the project," said Shashikumar.

Committee members say experts like Ashish Verma and TV Ramachandra from IISc and other mobility experts will address the gathering.

AFTER PROTEST, YELLOW LINE TO START EARLY ON MONDAYS

The Bangalore Metro Rail Corporation Limited (BMRCL) has introduced two early morning services on Namma Metro's Yellow Line on Mondays only. Beginning this week, trains will operate at 5.05 am and 5.35 am from both RV Road and Bommasandra every Monday. On all other weekdays, services will continue to start at 6 am, while on Sundays, the first train will run at 7 am. The revised Monday schedule has been displayed at all Yellow Line stations. The move comes following a recent protest by passengers at the RV Road Metro station on November 17, dissatisfied with the timings of the first train in the line that was at 6 am. A senior BMRCL official said the decision was aimed at easing crowding on Monday mornings, when a surge of passengers arrives in Bengaluru from their hometowns. "As services on the green and purple line also start early, with the introduction of an early morning service on the Yellow Line, commuters will now be able to avail early services on the new line too," the official said. ENS

HOLIDAY MATHIS

26th November : On the Last Day of a Retrograde Gratitude isn't always about joy or gain. Sometimes it's the awareness that a burden has lifted. The return to normalcy is a gift in itself. The day before American Thanksgiving is the last day of Saturn's retrograde, a change of direction that will for many be experienced as relief. A water sign trine will be like a spiritual bath -- perfect for a relaxing reset.

ARIES
(Mar 21 - Apr. 20)
If you could just do all the right steps in the right order, the task would get good results in a predictable amount of time. But perfect instructions are a rare thing in this world. So watch a pro and have a little fun while you give it your best shot.

TAURUS
(Apr. 20 - May 20)
Vivid fantasies and dreams are available to you the moment you make a relaxed space for them. Like children who go wild when adults leave the room, your thoughts will be feral fun once the uptight prefrontal cortex gets out of the way.

GEMINI
(May 21 - June 21)
You don't need rescuing, but some will rush in wanting to help. Let them show their care. Just don't hand over your power. Accept the kind of assistance that lightens your load without taking over your path.

CANCER
(June 22 - July 22)
Being struck with the best idea in a powerful, potent and fully realized form is a rarity. The first idea needs only to be good enough to keep you revisiting. Solutions will be the result of a thought process, not a thought.

LEO
(July 23 - Aug. 22)
You'll be once more made aware of how every object, obligation or identity we carry requires energy to maintain. To live with less is, in a sense, to be less tired. Fewer possessions, fewer commitments, fewer mental attachments -- this does bring freedom.

VIRGO
(Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)
The unconscious mind processes information faster than conscious reasoning. It picks up subtle cues and patterns, then delivers them as an "aha" or gut feeling. You feel as you do. Don't worry too much about your reasons -- trust that you have them.

LIBRA
(Sept. 23 - Oct. 23)
What you want is in line with what is possible, good and right for you to have. Streamline your efforts. A lean and mean approach will concentrate your power so you can use it precisely, making a difference when it matters.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 - Nov. 21)
You're open and curious right now, ready to explore. Lead with appetite and you'll have more fun because you're so hungry for life and ideas. Intuition will guide your curiosity, and you can trust it to know what's next for you.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)
Charisma is easy for you, but it's not always about giving a performance. Sometimes it's as simple as (SET ITAL) not (END ITAL) staring at a screen, so the others in the room feel you're in the same setting as them and you want to be there.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 - Jan. 19)
Your mood: feisty. It feels like the entire system is wonky. You may find yourself buzzing through every experience with a kind of low-grade, rebellious energy. The rebel in you doesn't need a justification -- just a stage.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)
You have a plan, and it's a good one, but when the moment arises, we are only as effective as our adaptive instincts. Keep your intentions at the forefront and you will succeed in conveying them.

PISCES
(Feb. 19 - Mar 20)
Those who can't appreciate their own experiences usually have trouble appreciating anyone else's. Keep that in mind when choosing an audience. The receptivity of others will affect your mood, so choose people who listen well and laugh easily.

CID to probe Belagavi call centre scam

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Belagavi

THE Belagavi City Police have transferred the high-profile fake call centre racket case to the Criminal Investigation Department (CID), Bengaluru, citing the need for deeper technical analysis, international coordination and additional manpower.

Belagavi police had busted an illegal call centre that allegedly targeted US citizens, defrauding them of money under false pretence.

The case was filed on November 11, 2025, following intelligence from the Internal Security Division (ISD) and an anonymous tip-off. Based on the complaint filed by ASI LS Chinagundi of the Cyber Crime Police Station, Belagavi, a case was registered involving multiple cyber and IPC offences.

During the investigation, a team led by ACP Raghu J and Police Inspectors BR Gaddekar and US Avati raided an illegal call centre near Azam Nagar Circle in Belagavi. A total of 33 suspects – 28 men and five women hailing from various places in India – were detained, and the police seized 37 laptops worth Rs 6.5 lakh, 38 mobile phones worth Rs 1.5 lakh and three Wi-Fi routers worth Rs 10,000. Of the 33 arrested persons, 28 were remanded to judicial custody on November 12, 2025. Continuing the probe, police recently arrested two more persons – Aijaz Khan, owner of Kumar Hall, and Tausif Mohammad Sab Sheikh.

The police said the suspects called Americans via VoIP, posing as customer-service or law-enforcement officials, and threatened them with the arrest or legal action unless certain 'payment' was made. The fraud began in March 2025, they said.

Technical examination of the seized mobile phones and laptops revealed that the accused had contacted more than 95 American citizens, with evidence indicating attempts at international cyber fraud. Because the targets were foreign nationals, investigators determined that INTERPOL assistance would be required.

Given the interstate nature of the accused, cross-border victim identification and the need for advanced cyber forensics, the Belagavi City Police requested transfer of the case to the CID. The DG & IGP, Bengaluru, approved the request.

Belagavi City Police Commissioner Bhushan Borse said that the specialised capabilities of CID will ensure a more extensive investigation into the international fraud network.

Haliyal couple hosts baby shower for pregnant dog

Soni being petted by the Shigli family in Haliyal on Monday | EXPRESS

EVEN as the Supreme Court has issued strict directions to control stray dog breeding by mandating sterilisation by local bodies, the human–canine bond continues to find unique expressions. A striking example emerges from Haliyal in Uttara Kannada, where a couple organised a grand baby shower for their pregnant pet dog.

The Shigli family in Haliyal town held the baby shower of Soni, an 18-month-old stray dog adopted by Prabhu and Prema Shigli, on Monday evening. Draped in a green saree and adorned with jewellery, Soni was treated like a traditional first-time mother. An 'aarthi' was performed, she was offered treats and all rituals associated with a baby shower were observed.

"This is her first pregnancy. We do not have a girl child, and Soni is like our daughter. If we had a daughter, we would have celebrated in the same way," said Prabhu.

Prema said, "We brought her home when she was a puppy. She is part of our family now. Our lives changed after she came to us. She has brought us happiness, and we wanted to celebrate her motherhood."

Several people attended the programme and said they had never seen a baby shower conducted for a dog. Traditionally, such ceremonies are performed for women who are pregnant for the first time.

CONGRESS HIGH COMMAND HAS TO TAKE A DECISION TO END CONFUSION: SIDDU

● No plans to meet Rahul: CM ● I believe in my conscience: DKS ● Cong factions busy purchasing own MLAs: Ashoka

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

AMID speculation over a leadership change and cabinet reshuffle in Karnataka, Karnataka Chief Minister Siddaramaiah on Tuesday said that the Congress high command has to take a decision to end the confusion.

"Let them (MLAs) say whatever they want to the party high command. Ultimately, to put a full stop to this confusion, the high command has to take a decision," the CM told media persons in Bengaluru. Responding to a question on some legislators visiting Delhi to meet the Central leaders, the CM said the legislators are free to go to the national capital and express their views before the central leaders. "Let us see what they have to say. Ultimately, the high command has to take a decision," Siddaramaiah added.

Siddaramaiah said he would reshuffle the cabinet after getting a nod from the high command. Responding to a question, the CM said that he has no plans to meet Leader of the Opposition in the Lok Sabha Rahul Gandhi. Siddaramaiah had on several occasions stated that all of them, including himself and Deputy Chief Minister DK Shivakumar, would abide by the party high command's decision.

The CM's remarks on the high command taking a decision to end the confusion assumes significance as the uncertainty over the leadership issue has hit his government's image. The opposition BJP and JDS have accused Congress leaders of indulging in the tussle for the CM's chair and neglecting governance.

No confusion, say ministers

BENGALURU: Commneting on the ongoing leadership tussle in the state, Minister for School Education and Literacy Madhu Bangrappa said that speculation is only in the media. "The high command will take a call. There is no confusion. The top brass has instructed us to keep our mouths shut and we are abiding by it," he said. Adding to this, Minister for Minor Irrigation and Science and Technology NS Boseraju said that there is discipline in the Congress. The high command is there to settle all the disputes, he said. "Talks are going among the MLAs and MLCs that after 2.5 years of rule, they also be given an opportunity to become ministers as they are also eligible. They are also demanding cabinet berths and this is being discussed," he said. ENS

I will not embarrass or weaken party: Shivakumar

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE

Deputy Chief Minister DK Shivakumar prays to his family deity at Sri Kenkeramma Temple in Kanakapura on Tuesday | PIC: X

WITH political tensions soaring in Karnataka over the change of leadership issue, Deputy Chief Minister DK Shivakumar on Tuesday said that he works according to his conscience and added that he doesn't want to embarrass or weaken his party, Congress.

"I believe in my conscience, and I work accordingly. We exist if the party and party workers are there. I don't want to embarrass or weaken my party," he told reporters at his hometown, Kanakapura, after exercising his franchise in the taluk agriculture marketing committee election.

Asked if AICC president Mallikarjun Kharge's Delhi visit was to discuss power transfer with LoP in Lok Sabha Rahul Gandhi, Shivakumar said, "I don't know about it. This is a secret among 5-6 people, and I won't disclose it. Chief Minister Siddaramaiah is a senior leader and an asset to the party. He has governed for 7.5 years and he has said that he would present the next budget as well. Happy to hear that. He has also helped build the party. All of us have to collectively work towards winning the 2028 and 2029 polls".

Asked if the people of Bengaluru South district would support him for the post of CM, he said, "During the Assembly election, I had appealed to the people to vote for me, and they have responded well. They have voted for a collective leadership... I won't say they have voted just for me. Our party workers have worked harder than us."

He dismissed the fact that the MLAs visiting Delhi were trying to lobby for him and maintained that those who are aspiring to become ministers have gone to the national capital. "I don't know about their efforts to make me CM. I have neither spoken to them nor sent them to Delhi. I will not even question them why they went to Delhi," Shivakumar, who is also the state Congress president, said.

Asked if there was an agreement for power transfer, he said, "Why should I talk about it? You (the media) are writing a lot about it."

Chalavadi slams Cong, calls it coalition govt

MYSURU: In a sharp attack on the Congress, LoP in Council Chalavadi Narayanaswamy on Tuesday criticised the ongoing leadership crisis in Karnataka and alleged that the Ruling party has become a coalition government within itself. Addressing reporters in Mysuru on Tuesday, the BJP leader claimed that the number of MLAs in the camp of Deputy Chief Minister D K Shivakumar has grown from "15-20 earlier to about 65 now," indicating deepening rifts within the Congress. "It is ironic that the Congress leadership speaks of stability when its own house is collapsing," he said. Targeting AICC president Mallikarjun Kharge, Narayanaswamy questioned why the former deflects internal issues to the high command. "Isn't he the high command? What is happening inside Congress is an irony in itself," he said. Calling Congress a party of pickpockets, he said Dalit leaders in the party are powerless.

Power transfer hots up, Kharges play major role

DEVARAJ B HIREHALLI @Bengaluru

WITH the leadership tussle becoming more contentious, RDPR Minister Priyank Kharge, who is also AICC president Mallikarjuna Kharge's son, met Leader of Opposition in the Lok Sabha Rahul Gandhi in New Delhi on Tuesday, and held a detailed talk on the state's political situation, according to sources.

Details of what transpired during the meeting are not known. However, soon after landing in Bengaluru from Delhi, Priyank met Chief Minister Siddaramaiah and DCM DK Shivakumar separately for about half-an-hour each, and reportedly conveyed Rahul's message to both leaders, sources said.

Earlier in the day, Shivakumar met AICC president Mallikarjuna Kharge, who was bound for Delhi, and accompanied him up to the airport where he received an emergency call, speculated to be from the central leadership in New Delhi.

Landing in Delhi, Kharge clarified that he would meet Rahul Gandhi only if the latter calls for a meeting. "It is not a subject (change in leadership) to be talked about here openly, I came here to attend Constitution Day. Normally, the party president does not go on his own to discuss this. If a meeting is scheduled, I will discuss it," he told reporters. Since Priyank had already met Rahul Gandhi and briefed him on the state's situation, Kharge found no reason to meet Rahul, sources said.

Interestingly, Housing Minister Zameer Ahmed Khan played Siddaramaiah's envoy and offered an olive branch to Shivakumar. According to sources, this happened after Siddaramaiah held a meeting with his coterie of ministers.

Meanwhile, CM's close aide and former minister KN Rajanna, in an interview with a private TV channel, asserted that Home Minister Dr G Parameshwara deserved the CM's post if Siddaramaiah were to step down. "Parameshwara toiled for the party to come to power in 2013 but lost miserably, and he is not second to DK Shivakumar. If Shivakumar becomes CM, I wouldn't like to be in his cabinet," he said.

He alleged that Shivakumar collected signatures from MLAs, and had visited Vinay Kulakarni and Veerendra Pappi in jail for this purpose. Otherwise, he wouldn't have visited them in such urgency, he alleged.

According to sources, the Congress high command, besides reminding Siddaramaiah of the power-sharing pact, is likely to strike a balance between him and Shivakumar, as both cannot be ignored. A formula could be worked out by taking Siddaramaiah's word to transfer power at an appropriate time, and allow him to go ahead with the cabinet reshuffle, sources added.

As soon as Rahul Gandhi gave Siddaramaiah the green signal for a cabinet reshuffle during his visit last time, Shivakumar swung into action to counter it which appears to be working in his favour, to gain the high command's word on the chief minister's post, analysts pointed out.

Political developments won't affect conduct of winter session: Khader

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Mangaluru

ASSEMBLY Speaker UT Khader on Tuesday expressed confidence that the ongoing power tussle within the Congress and the Opposition's allegations of horse-trading among party factions will not disrupt the winter session of the state legislature to be held in Belagavi from December 8 to 19.

Speaking to reporters in Mangaluru, Khader said he would permit a discussion on the issue if raised in accordance with the Assembly rules. Noting that 37 of the 39 bills tabled in the previous session were passed after debate and consensus, which is a record of sorts, the Speaker hoped for a similar productive session this winter. "It (session) will be in the interest of people," he said.

"The winter session will specially focus on issues concerning North Karnataka. In the last winter session, 35 MLAs had raised matters related to the region, and I expect the same level of participation this time as well," he said.

Khader said six bills have been listed so far for the upcoming session, none of which are major.

He also announced that Vinod Kumar Revappa from Kalaburagi will display a 50x75 ft handmade khadi Indian National Flag—which is the second-largest flag in the world—during the session.

When asked if he would allow a debate on MP Vishweshwara Hegde Kageri's allegations of corruption in purchases for the Vidhana Soudha, Khader dismissed the issue, saying it did not merit discussion. "Records speak the truth," he said, defending the expenditure incurred for the Book Expo and facilities provided to legislators.

He clarified that the silk shawls presented to litterateurs at the expo cost Rs 25,000 each and were procured from the Karnataka Silk Industries Corporation. "Great writers cannot be presented simple gifts," he added.

Responding to criticism over recliner chairs with massage features, Khader said they were not purchased but merely displayed as part of a "marketing exercise." He added that no written complaints have been filed so far regarding the allegations.

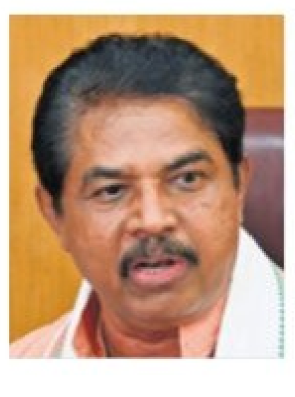
When asked whether he was a ministerial aspirant in the event of a change of guard in the state, Khader said he was unaware of any such political developments. "After I became Speaker, political channels have closed—only constitutional channels remain open," he said.

Dog enclosure planned at Vidhana Soudha

Speaker Khader informed that an enclosure for stray dogs would be built within the Vidhana Soudha premises and maintained by an NGO. The enclosure will have direct access to the road, not the building. Stray dogs that enter the Vidhana Soudha premises will be caught and relocated to the enclosure, he said.

Some Cong leaders met us to form govt: Ashoka

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Kalaburagi



"SOME Congress leaders approached us to explore the possibility of forming a government with the help of rebels if the situation warrants. But we told them that BJP is not interested in fishing in troubled waters," said senior BJP MLA and Leader of Opposition in the Assembly R Ashoka here on Tuesday. He told reporters that people are confused whether an elected government is functioning in the state as the ruling party factions are busy purchasing their own MLAs for a show of strength before the Congress high command.

Former deputy chief minister Govind Karjol, who too was present, said whoever bids the highest will become the chief minister in Congress. The auction has started with Rs 7 crore, he alleged. He said three factions — Siddaramaiah's, DK Shivakumar's and Lingayats' — are in the race for chief minister's post. Though Dalits have thrown in their hats, they will not succeed, he felt.

Ashoka said Siddaramaiah is creating confusion among Congress legislators by saying he will be chief minister for a full five years, then changing the stance to say he would abide by the high command. At the same time, Shivakumar is busy meeting Naga Sadhus and visiting temples for blessings to become chief minister, he added.

"AICC president Mallikarjun Kharge recently said everything is in the hands of the high command. If he is not high command, who is? Congress is ruled only by three persons, Rahul Gandhi, Sonia Gandhi and Priyank Gandhi. This high command has become a weak command after the Bihar Assembly poll results," Ashoka ridiculed the ruling party.

Congress has failed on all fronts, including providing relief to farmers who have lost crops, maintaining law and order and state's finances, he said. "The government should seek dissolution of the Assembly, while BJP is confident of winning the Assembly elections with majority at any time," he added.

'N K'taka needs more dists, better governance and not statehood'

JEHOSH PAUL
Lawyer and research consultant from Kalyana-Karnataka region

The demand for a separate North Karnataka state has resurfaced once again, this time from within the ruling party. Congress MLA Bharamgouda (Raju) Kage has written to the President of India, the Prime Minister, the governor and the chief minister, calling for a new state carved out of 15 northern districts. He cited decades of neglect since the unification of Karnataka in 1956 and pointed to a signature campaign supported by over one crore people.

Behind the letter lies a grievance that is both old and real. Districts in what is now called Kalyana-Karnataka consistently rank at the bottom on human development indicators. Access to quality education, healthcare, irrigation, industry and stable employment is much weaker than in Bengaluru and the southern belt. Large numbers of young people from Raichur, Yadgir, Koppal and Ballari migrate to other states or cities for basic livelihood. The state itself has acknowledged this gap through the DM Nanjundappa Committee report on regional imbalance, the more recent Govind Rao committee set up to review it, and through the special status granted to the Kalyana Karnataka region under Article 371(J) of the Constitution. The problem is not lack of diagnosis, but lack of adequate response.

The question, however, is whether breaking Karnataka is the only way to address this crisis. Statehood is a drastic remedy. It requires a long and uncertain process under Article 3 of the Constitution, a political consensus that does not yet exist, and a complex division of assets, staff and institutions. It would raise fresh questions about the sharing of rivers and reservoirs in a region already strained by water disputes. It would also cut across the emotional idea of 'Akhanda Karnataka', which was built through a long movement for a unified Kannada-speaking state. Before choosing such an extreme instrument, it is necessary to examine whether less disruptive but serious structural reforms have been exhausted.

The core complaint that residents of North Karnataka describe is not only about the amount of money spent, but about distance from power. In several districts, many taluks are more than 100 km from the district headquarters. For a woman who needs a signature on a scholarship form, a farmer who disputes land records or a worker who wants to pursue a grievance, this can mean losing a full day, spending on travel and depending on local intermediaries. That physical distance translates into a feeling that the state is remote, slow and unaccountable.

In this context, one concrete instrument is district reorganisation. Karnataka has used it several times, for example through the recent creation of Udupi, Koppal, Chikkaballapur, Ramanagara Yadgir and Vijayanagara districts. These changes have brought the deputy commissioner's office, the district hospital, the court complex and other key services closer to citizens. A new district also becomes a local growth centre. The establishment of a new headquarters leads to investment in government buildings, housing, markets, transport and services. This can generate jobs and stimulate local economies in the region that otherwise sends its youth away.

Further, for decentralisation to have real meaning, creation of districts must go hand in hand with other measures. Along with capital allocation, the state needs to clear administrative bottlenecks at the district and taluk levels so that funds are actually allocated and released on time instead of getting stuck in the system. It must also commission independent evaluations whether projects are completed and services improve.

Seen in this light, the renewed demand for a separate North Karnataka state is best read as a warning signal that large sections of the state feel that unification has not brought them equal citizenship in practice. The more honest response from the State government and from political parties across the spectrum would be to shift the conversation. Instead of debating only on dividing Karnataka, they should ask why so many people still travel such long distances to access basic state services. The first step towards an answer lies in a clear and time-bound agenda to create additional districts in the region, locate more institutions there, and ensure that the public investment committed to the region is spent effectively.

If the state uses the instruments it already has to bring governance closer and to narrow long-standing gaps, the appeal of statehood will naturally weaken. If it does not, then demands for a separate State will continue to return, each time with slightly greater force.

MP Karjol slams Kage for statehood demand

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Kalaburagi

CONGRESS MLA from Kagwad Assembly constituency Raju Kage does not know the history of Karnataka and that is why he has written letter to the President of India and others demanding statehood for North Karnataka, former Deputy chief minister and BJP Member of Parliament for Chitradurga Govind Karjol has said.

Karjol said that Karnataka (formerly called Mysore State) was formed with the sacrifice of many people.

"One of my family member was also jailed for struggling for the formation of Akhanda Karnataka. BJP will never support the demand of splitting the state," Karjol said. If someone feels that their region is neglected, they have to fight with the government to sort it out, he said, adding that nobody should speak of splitting the state.

Poll body must not use students for SIR: Kerala

CEO defends moves, says they obtained permission from teachers

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @T'Puram

THE Election Department's move to utilise the services of students, who are members of Electoral Literacy Clubs (ELCs) in their respective schools, for the ongoing Special Summary Revision (SIR) of electoral rolls has courted controversy, with the Kerala government opposing the proposal.

In a statement, General Education Minister V Sivankutty said deploying school students for SIR-related work would disrupt their studies. The Minister said academic activities were going ahead in full swing in the state's schools with the terminal examinations round the corner.

"In such a scenario, deploying students for enumeration and digitisation works of SIR for 10 days at a stretch cannot be accepted," the Minister said. Even though social service activities are encouraged among student volunteers, deploying them for such duties for a prolonged period was improper, as it would lead to loss of instructional days, the Minister reminded.

Meanwhile, Kerala Chief Electoral Officer (CEO), Rathan U Kelkar, said the proposal has been mooted to provide a chance to students, who are members of the 1,700-strong ELCs in schools, to become a part of the election process. The official stressed that the EROs had intended to utilise the service of students purely on a voluntary basis after obtaining the permission of the teachers concerned, and also in a manner that does not affect their studies.

Sivankutty said directions have been issued to officials of the General Education Department to ensure that students are not deprived of their classes. The minister added that 5,523 staff, including 2,938 teachers, of the General Education Department have already been deployed as Booth Level Officers (BLOs) for SIR-related work.

Educational institutions in Kozhikode and Thrissur had received letters from the Electoral Registration Officers (EROs) requesting the deployment of student volunteers, including those from NSS and NCC, for the ongoing SIR process. The EROs requested the students' participation as part of mobilising additional manpower for the collection and digitisation of SIR enumeration forms.

Ex-AIADMK min Sengottaiyan to join TVK

S KUMARESAN @ CHENNAI/P SRINIVASAN @Erode

SMARTING over his expulsion from AIADMK for his fight for unity, former minister and Erode strongman KA Sengottaiyan is expected to join actor Vijay's Tamilaga Vettri Kazhagam (TVK) on Thursday.

The Gobichettipalayam MLA is likely to meet Vijay on Wednesday to finalise his entry into the party. He may be appointed as one of the general secretaries of TVK, sources said.

"He has decided to resign from his MLA post on Wednesday. He is currently in Chennai. He will soon join the TVK," a close loyalist of Sengottaiyan said.

Sengottaiyan

Speaking to reporters in Coimbatore airport before leaving for Chennai on Tuesday evening, Sengottaiyan said the present AIADMK leadership "rewarded him" with expulsion for the hard work he had put in for the party during his 50-year-long political career. "The expulsion had depressed me a lot," he said. Sengottaiyan, however, left without answering reporters' questions about whether he would join the TVK.

A nine-time MLA, who won from Sathyamangalam when the AIADMK first captured power in 1977, Sengottaiyan has long projected himself as a staunch loyalist of former CMs and AIADMK stalwarts MG Ramachandran and J Jayalalithaa.

Sengottaiyan openly rebelled against AIADMK general secretary Edappadi K Palaniswami on September 5, urging him to initiate measures to reinduct expelled leaders including former Chief Minister O Panneerselvam, TTV Dhinakaran, and VK Sasikala. He had said it was imperative to bring back all expelled leaders to the AIADMK fold to prevent further electoral defeats.

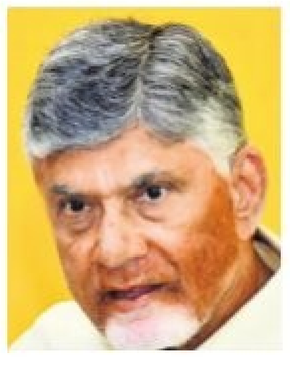
Naidu annouces ₹40k cr plan to develop R'seema as global horticulture hub

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Vijayawada

ANDHRA Pradesh Chief Minister N Chandrababu Naidu has announced an ambitious plan to develop Rayalaseema as a global horticulture hub with a massive investment of Rs 40,000 crore under the Purvodayam Scheme.



The initiative has been designed to expand horticulture cultivation across 50 lakh acres, improve infrastructure, and open up international market opportunities for farmers of Rayalaseema and Prakasam districts. During a review meeting at the State Secretariat on Tuesday, the Chief Minister emphasised that Rayalaseema already produces 65 varieties of horticultural crops, and of which 18 have strong global demand. He directed officials to focus on these demand-driven crops, including banana, papaya, pomegranate, mango, onion, tomato, chilli and lemon, while ensuring farmers receive support in irrigation, marketing and logistics.

"Rayalaseema must be developed into a horticulture hub. Certification and traceability are crucial to meet international standards," Naidu said. The government has identified 92 clusters across Rayalaseema and Prakasam districts to implement the plan, benefiting nearly 5.98 lakh farmers. These clusters will serve as focal points for infrastructure development, including rural roads, irrigation projects, and cold-chain facilities.

The Chief Minister stressed that micro-irrigation systems should be expanded to ensure water supply, while organic farming practices must be promoted to enhance sustainability, and meet global certification requirements. Plans are also underway to create air cargo facilities to transport fruits directly to Dubai, which serves as a gateway to global destinations.

Robots, AI can't replace man in space: Shux

BOSKY KHANNA @ Bengaluru

Admitting that a lot of research and work is being done to improve the space sector, especially in addressing basic human necessities, such as air, food and washroom, Gaganyatri and Group Captain Shubhanshu Shukla, said Artificial Intelligence (AI) and robots still cannot replace humans in space.

"In fighter aircrafts, we have onboard Oxygen Generation Systems. We are looking to have the same capability for future space stations. But presently oxygen tanks are stored in space stations and whenever the oxygen levels drop, they are used to level the supply," he said.

Shukla was replying to a question raised by a student during the "Astronaut–Student Interaction" programme organised by Jawaharlal Nehru Planetarium, Bengaluru, and Karnataka Science and Technology Promotion Centre, Department of Science and Technology. Around 550 students from 19 schools in Bengaluru, Kushtagi and Hassan districts interacted with Shukla.

Replying to a student's query about managing food and hygiene in space, Shukla said food and eating are not a problem. "Washroom facility is a challenge and Boeing is working on creating a toilet in space. It is still not ready. Hopefully, you inquisitive students will be able to address it. At present, there is vacuum in space. You can even hang upside down from the roof and use the toilet in space," he said.

Another question that caught Shukla's attention was whether human space flight was necessary or robots and AI could be used instead. Shukla said the challenge to use robots is that it requires automating and preplanning everything. At present, there is no generic or general AI tool. The talent that humans have is that they can correct things immediately and think of multiple things at a time, which robots and AI cannot do. Hence, it is a challenge, he said.

On chances of ISRO's cost-effective image hampering India's future space mission, Shukla said, "I do not think being cost- effective means overlooking the safety of astronauts and the missions. We are being cost-effective in terms of global standards. But that will not hinder the future of our missions."

Shukla also said the astronauts are trained to address medical emergencies in space. "The only thing you cannot do in space is dental treatment. Your teeth need to be good when going into space."

"I trained for five years to be in space for a 20-day mission," he said.

Astronaut skips comments on B'luru traffic

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Kalaburagi

The statement by Group Captain and Gaganyatri Shubhanshu Shukla four days ago, during the concluding day of the 28th edition of Bengaluru Tech Summit 2025, continues to be in the news, even four days after the event.

Ahead of his interaction with students at Jawaharlal Nehru Planetarium in Bengaluru on Tuesday, Shukla said, "During my last interaction with students and people, what was highlighted the most was not my interaction, but my travel time. That travelling in space was easier than navigating through Bengaluru traffic. Therefore this time I will not comment on Bengaluru's traffic. Lets move on from there."

Later in the day, IT-BT Minister Priyank Kharge had responded to his statement, saying it would be looked into and efforts made to ensure it does not happen again. Shukla had travelled from Marathahalli to Bengaluru International Exhibition Centre on Tumkuru Road.

Nandini Ghee to be exported to US, Saudi

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

Chief Minister Siddaramaiah on Tuesday said KMF's Nandini Ghee is being exported to US, Saudi Arabia and Australia, and there is good demand for the product not only in India but abroad too.

Addressing the media after flagging off the Nandini Ghee export consignment vehicle at his residence Cauvery on Tuesday, Siddaramaiah said, "The demand for Nandini Ghee is increasing, there is demand for it in India and abroad as well."

Kumar, a Mysuru native residing in the US, bagged the contract for export of Nandini Ghee. Karnataka Milk Federation (KMF) Managing Director Shivaswamy said KMF is currently exporting Nandini Goodlife milk, ghee, cheese, dairy whitener, butter, ice-cream, flavoured milk, sweets and savouries to countries with high Indian population, especially Kannadigas. He said for the first time, Nandini Ghee is being exported to US, Australia and Saudi Arabia.

There was a demand for 8 tonnes of ghee from Saudi Arabia, 5 tonnes from US and 1 tonne from Australia, Shivaswamy said.

AI is now part of KPS curriculum, says Bangarppa

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

Minister for School Education and Literacy Madhu Bangrappa said on Tuesday that Artificial Intelligence (AI) has been made part of Karnataka Public Schools' (KPS) curriculum to help children to be future ready.

Similarly, subjects on space and computer science have been introduced for students of Grade 1 and Grade 6, respectively. He was speaking at "Astronaut-Student Interaction" organised by Jawaharlal Nehru Planetarium, Bengaluru, and Karnataka Science and Technology Promotion Centre, Department of Science and Technology. He said as against the announcement of starting 500 KPS made in the budget, the state government has opened 900.

Team Brijesh confident of relief from court

"NOT a large unpaid bill, not a financial scandal, not even a technical violation of significant consequence, just Rs 200 spread across four years, an amount that would barely buy two cups of filter coffee on MG Road," the statement read.

Team Brijesh is confident that the court will rule in their favour, as a source from the camp expects the court to hear Kumar's petition on Wednesday. The statement read, "In this case, the arrear belongs not to Shantha Kumar personally, but to the association he represents." It also charged the KSCA electoral body with misconduct.

"The rejection of a presidential nomination over Rs 200 creates an impression not of strict adherence to rules, but of overzealous technical policing or worse, of an attempt to keep a particular contender out of the fray. When sports bodies begin treating petty lapses as disqualifying crimes, the credibility of the election process suffers," it read.

Apart from Kumar, the electoral body also disqualified Vinay Mruthyunjaya, who was running for the post of secretary from Team Game Changers led by Venkatesh Prasad.

POLLUTION AFFECTS ALL, REDRESS CAN'T BE LEFT TO PRIVATE OPTIONS

CALL it the Gurugram model of urban development. In this familiar pattern, the conurbation grows fast, government action on public goods lags, and citizens fend for themselves. If residents were once used to arranging their own power backup, security and even roads, the degraded common resource most metro dwellers are now trying to clean or avoid is the most plentiful of all—air. It is no longer only about masks and indoor purifiers. Portable purifiers and lotions claiming an 'anti-pollution factor' are flying off the shelves—never mind expert advice that these methods are unproven. Even hyperbaric chambers, meant to raise blood oxygen levels for medical purposes, are now marketed as anti-pollution services. None of these innovations make a dent in the public problem.

The angst reached such a level this Sunday that when the Delhi Police tried to remove young protestors demanding cleaner air—the second such remonstrance this month—some protestors allegedly used pepper spray on the policemen. Twenty-two of them were taken into judicial custody and charged with obstructing police work and making 'assertions prejudicial to national integration', as some also raised slogans for the killed Maoist leader Madvi Hidma. Even if causes got confusingly coupled in Delhi, the greyness over Bengaluru and Mumbai held steady. In recent weeks, the IT capital—especially the densely populated East Bengaluru—has seen unprecedented air-quality index levels of 150–170. The commercial capital's air has also stayed far above safe limits. It is no longer just a 'Delhi problem'.

The critical question is: how many Indians can afford these ad hoc personal solutions? And what about the public health burden? The Centre for Research on Energy and Clean Air recently highlighted that young children are the most vulnerable, as they breathe faster and absorb more pollutants. For a fair public discourse, we must first remove the artificial cap of 500 on official AQI counts, as independent monitors often notch far higher. The biggest culprits remain traffic congestion, unclean construction, and open waste or fuel burning. Clearly, mandated measures are falling well short. If governance is about doing the greatest good for the greatest number, the most abundant public good has to be urgently cleaned up in the world's most populous nation.

ACCOUNTABILITY MUST FOR NEW ODISHA HIRING PANEL

THE Odisha cabinet recently cleared the creation of an umbrella recruitment agency to hire personnel for uniformed services in the state. The proposed Odisha Uniformed Services Staff Selection Commission will be responsible for recruiting staff across ranks for four key departments—home, excise, forest, and commerce & transport. The move follows a string of failed hiring exercises, mostly for the state police. The cancellation of police sub-inspector recruitment twice in eight months proved to be the last straw. Charges of question paper leaks from a compromised system prompted the government to hand the probe to the CBI and seek a dedicated recruitment panel that will reportedly be on the lines of the one for the armed forces. On the face of it, the idea addresses a crisis. But what will another recruitment commission offer?

The immediate challenge will be to set up the agency swiftly, as most of the departments have large workforces and the government has set itself a target to fill 1.5 lakh vacancies in five years. Any delay will undo its own promise. In the past, recruitment for the uniformed services was handled by multiple state agencies, none of which could ensure the integrity of the tests. An increasing number of recruitment drives in the last few years were delayed or cancelled as corruption accusations flew thick and fast, severely eroding public trust. The irony is that even the state police recruitment board came up short while conducting its own test to hire sub-inspectors.

Now, a new dedicated agency under the general administration and public grievances department will have the onerous task of doing things in a fair and transparent manner as the future of lakhs of job seekers is at stake. The national trend shows the paper leak mafia is well entrenched and can go to any length to rig the tests for high-profile government jobs. To take on the complex challenge, the Mohan Majhi government would do well not to make the new agency a post-retirement paradise for bureaucrats. It must be designed as a professional body with a strong enforcement authority and accountability. The use of appropriate technology would be a sound investment, too. The new staff selection commission must not end up being another white elephant.

QUICK TAKE

DODGE THAT BULLET

IRONY died a thousand deaths when the Trump administration recently announced the quiet burial of its department of government efficiency. Barely eight months after DOGE tsar Elon Musk held aloft a chainsaw and declared his department would slash the American federal bureaucracy to reduce costs, the ship he abandoned half a year ago has sunk. As this newspaper has stated earlier, India has been there. An Expenditure Reforms Commission set up a quarter century ago examined 36 ministries and submitted 10 reports; but it did not move any needle. Administrative reforms commissions met the same fate. The point to note is that even an unprecedentedly powerful team like DOGE may fail at meaningfully cutting government flab. What's needed is annual efficiency drives within each department.

Nationalism did not begin with the nation-state. Both Tagore and Gandhi underlined the need for playfulness in the national imagination and dreamt of an alternative childhood

BEFORE DISSENT, NEED PLAYFULNESS IN NATIONALISM

SHIV VISVANATHAN

MANDAR PARDIKAR

WHENEVER I try to balance between the esoteric and the everyday, my mind tends to go back to the memory of my teacher, Ramchandra Gandhi.

He was a remarkable philosopher, an authority on mathematician and philosopher Alfred North Whitehead. I still remember the way Ramu would come to class and quote Whitehead's lecture at Harvard. Whitehead had apparently once walked into the classroom, banged his head gently, and said, "Gentlemen, I have disturbed the most distant star," referring to the interconnectedness of the cosmos.

For Ramu, communication and connectivity were part of everyday life. The way he linked them reminds me of the way he used to talk about nationalism. For Ramchandra Gandhi, nationalism was a filigreed moment—full of nuances, a dissenting imagination that created a pluralistic world.

For him, deep down inside, nationalism was a different way of looking at reality—a dream world that created a sense of alternatives. Within this context, he pointed out that the world of nationalism was not actually an invention of the nation-state. For India, and in fact for many nationalists, the dream of nationalism was a dream of inventing an alternative childhood.

Childhood, in fact, was the focus of many nationalist moments. It's best captured in Rabindranath Tagore's statement: "Every child born today is an indication that god is not yet tired of man." In this sense, Tagore captured the essence of the Indian national movement.

Childhood was a dream of flexibility. Childhood was a dream of freedom. And childhood brought about a sense of playfulness. This sense of play—with the capacity to imagine and inhabit alternatives—is something we have lost today. The dream of playfulness is caught in many ways in how we learn to live with uncertainty and celebrate plurality. It is this sense of play that we have lost in our nationalist movement, which has become more monologic, more uniform. We have created a monopoly of ideas, which now come as dictates rather than dialogues. Playfulness—the politics of play—is something our politics has forgotten.

The first thing we have to understand is that the emphasis on the nation-state is misleading. For many nationalists in India—from Tagore to Patrick Geddes to Maria Montessori—it was their childhood that was the basis of the dream world. Childhood, in a way, was an articulation of alternatives. And this is what we must begin by emphasising that the nation-state was not so much a political economy as a pedagogic construct—a new way of understanding reality, teaching it, and communicating it. What marked childhood, and what marked nationalism in particular, was a certain sense of playfulness. This can be brought out by a series of examples.

One of the first things one thinks of is Mahatma Gandhi's own work on the charkha. The charkha, he said, was not just an instrument; it is a weave of playful ideas. In this context, he said the charkha could be used to teach Pythagorean ideas and mathematics—a pedagogic tool, an invention to teach through play.

Gandhi emphasised again and again the sense of fun that nationalism and play brought about. I am reminded of the time when industrialist Jamnalal Bajaj gave Gandhi a Ford Motor car. It ran in the ashram for a week or two, then broke down. Gandhi had it pulled by a set of oxen, and playfully introduced it to visitors as "my Ox-Ford".

It is this sense of playfulness, this sense of alternatives, this openness to interpretation that made nationalism not only a dissenting imagination, but a dream of alternatives—something we have lost today.

As Ramu pointed out, nationalism was a dream of childhood, a dream of playfulness. And connecting the two was a deep sense of alternatives.

I still remember my father telling me that during his school days, he worked on vacation with the Raman group in science at Bengaluru. He was still at school, but was invited to the discussions. Because he took part in them, he obtained his first publication in the journal Nature while still a schoolboy.

National playfulness, then, was the possibility of the unexpected, the uncertain, the plural—and it is this playfulness that we lack today. Play was not just a rule-bound game. Play was an attempt to create a different kind of creative imagination. One can think of this in two contexts—in the debates between Tagore and Mahatma Gandhi.

Gandhi wanted the charkha to be an instrument of daily discipline. He pointed out that merely creating a charkha in an imitative sense was not enough. One needed to create a sense of diversity. And it was in this context that he emphasised that the erotic must be part of the everyday.

Tagore's critique of Gandhi, then, was about how to bring the erotic—the sensuous and the creative—into the everyday. And this could be done only through a notion of playfulness.

Gandhi went further. He pointed out that colonialism cannot be seen only as a dreary ethic of protest and resistance. Anti-colonialism, he felt, must contain playfulness. In this context, Gandhi said one of the deep tasks of India was to "rescue the West from its dreariness".

It is here that play becomes central to the Indian national movement.

So what Ramu Gandhi analysed was that the Indian national movement was plural, playful, a dream of childhood—and, in this context, it provided a structure of alternative thought. Ramu pointed out that it is precisely what we miss today. Distinctiveness lies in being playful, serious, plural—in creating an alternative world of imagination.

The Indian national movement was full of different dreams of childhood. One can think of Montessori, of the occult child of whom Jiddu Krishnamurti was an example, or of Tagore's dream of Shantiniketan, where childhood became an anchor for an alternative world.

It is precisely this that one finds missing today.

DIPPING INTO THE DPDP REGIME

ATUL N MENON

Lawyer at the Supreme Court of India

NOVEMBER 14 was an important date in India's digital journey, marking a milestone by bringing to life a comprehensive framework that fundamentally changes how companies handle personal data. One of the major things that changes with the notification of the Digital Personal Data Protection (DPDP) Rules, 2025—at least in theory—is the way an individual's browsing history, e-commerce trail, or social media use can be used by advertisers. We are all used to privacy policies posted on these platforms, though hardly anyone reads them. What's critical for the layman to note is that the DPDP framework transports privacy from a constitutional promise to enforceable rights and duties.

The good news is that companies can no longer hide behind impenetrable legal jargon. There has to be a clear and understandable request from the person determining the purpose and means of processing personal data (data fiduciary), for consent from the person whose data is being processed (data principal). The request shall be accompanied by a notice informing the principal of the purpose for processing the personal data, the way the principal can withdraw or modify consent, the grievance mechanism available, and the way complaints can be raised against the data fiduciary.

The rules provide timelines for data fiduciaries to maintain records before erasing them from their system. It is also significant to note that the rules apply to processing personal data outside India if it is in connection with offering goods or services within India.

The rules also provide for registration of 'consent managers', entities that play the role of a trusted intermediary between data principals and data fiduciaries, by assisting the data principal to manage their consents through a given platform. Consent managers have certain obligations too, such as implementing reasonable technical and organisational measures to prevent personal data breaches, and maintaining detailed records of every consent given, denied, or withdrawn, along with related notices and data sharing.

Ultimately, the consent must be a clear affirmation of an agreement to process personal data for a specific purpose. This shows a fundamental shift in power by placing the individual—data principal—at the centre of the framework. The DPDP rules that convert the framework into day-to-day obligations.

The DPDP framework also takes data breaches seriously. The haunting stories of password leaks, personal photos getting exposed, and bank details stolen cannot be dealt with silently by companies accountable for the breach. There is a mandatory requirement for them to report to the Data Protection Board without delay, and the board will thereafter have to take note of the steps taken by the company to remedy the wrong or mitigate the risk. The board is designed to be entirely digital. This means filings, hearings, and decisions are all expected to be done online.

EXPRESS

> Users need to understand how the new Digital Personal Data Protection (DPDP) Rules affect their online lives. From privacy protection to redress options, much will change in the next 18 months. The efficacy of the new Data Protection Board will be essential in making the framework robust

Another important point to note (especially if you are a parent) is that your children are protected. Data fiduciaries cannot process your child's data without your verifiable consent. Companies cannot track your child's behaviour or show them targeted advertisements.

The penalties that the Board can impose range from ₹10,000 (for data principals who provide wrong information or impersonate another person through the data they provide) to ₹250 crore (for violations of the Act by data fiduciaries). These fines are designed for body corporates to take notice. However, not all body corporates are treated the same way; the central government's department for promotion of industry and internal trade-recognised startups have lighter compliance mandates. Further, the rules provide softer tools, such as mediation and voluntary undertakings.

There are also certain legitimate uses that are exempted. For example, in case of a medical emergency that poses a threat to life or immediate health of the data principal, or in taking measures to prevent an epidemic. The central government itself has been given a wide range of exemptions. It can process data for 'security' or 'public order'. While the government maintains that public interest overrides privacy concerns to the worry of critics, the exemptions granted to them remain a concern, as they reignite the debate over unchecked surveillance and abuse of power.

Unlike the General Data Protection Regulation, 2018, which is the comprehensive data privacy law enacted by the European Union, which demands strict necessity, proportionality, and independent oversight, India's DPDP leaves these boundaries unclear, echoing the long-standing constitutional worries.

Importantly, a recent notification states that the law will be rolled out in a staggered manner. While some provisions take effect immediately, the main compliance requirements for companies will take effect after 18 months. While this appears to be extremely practical, the most crucial citizen facing rights, such as informed consent, breach notification, data correction and erasure, and grievance redressal, are deferred for 18 months. The Data Protection Board, scheduled to be set up in the next one year for digitally accessible grievance redress, faces scrutiny for potentially limited independence—appointments and removals are tightly managed by the central government.

In any event, the notification of the DPDP marks a transformative moment and plays a crucial role in India's growing digital economy. Its success shall inevitably rest on the shoulders of the citizens, corporates and the regulators in creating an ecosystem that is both secure and inclusive. (Views are personal)

Envoy recalls shared sacrifices

Amid strain, B'desh High Commissioner hails Indian soldiers' 1971 role, calls ties 'multi-layered'

Riaz Hamidullah
High Commissioner of Bangladesh to India

High Commission of Bangladesh, New Delhi

'Dhaka has relied on conversation and negotiation'

While acknowledging that challenges had emerged, the envoy stressed Dhaka's preference for dialogue and pragmatism. "Bangladesh has consistently relied on conversation and negotiation, believing in a shared future," he said. "It is what I and my colleagues across India engage in practically, to secure peace, stability and prosperity in Bangladesh and India."

AMID strain in bilateral ties, Bangladesh's High Commissioner to India, Riaz Hamidullah used the occasion of Bangladesh Armed Forces Day to honour the sacrifices made by both nations during the 1971 Liberation War and to underline the enduring strength of the relationship. Speaking at a reception at the Bangladesh High Commission in Delhi on Monday, marking the day in 1971 when Bangladesh's Army, Navy and Air Force formally came into being, Hamidullah recalled the coordinated push against Pakistani forces.

India was represented by Lt Gen Manish Luthra, Director General of Military Operations (DGMO), who attended as chief guest. Members of the diplomatic community and several Indian veterans of the 1971 war were also present.

The envoy said: "I do recall the valued contributions of the 1,668 Indian soldiers who made the supreme sacrifice during the 1971 war. I acknowledge the surviving war veterans of India. No less should we pay homage to countless ordinary women, men and families in India, especially in Tripura and West Bengal, who endured so much and shared millions of Bangladesh's agony during the war. "Highlighting the foundations of the partnership, he described Bangladesh-India relations as "deep and multi-layered, bound by shared history, shared culture, shared geography. Our two people are tied just organically. It's a relationship that's embedded in mutual respect and trust, not to be driven by a zero-sum game."

While acknowledging that challenges had emerged, the envoy stressed Dhaka's preference for dialogue and pragmatism. "Bangladesh has consistently relied on conversation and negotiation, believing in a shared future," he said. "It is what I and my colleagues across India engage in practically, to secure peace, stability and prosperity in Bangladesh and India."

Hamidullah also noted expanding defence engagement, saying he was satisfied with the "multifaceted cooperation" between the two armed forces. These interactions, he added, "ought to continue and flourish, to the mutual benefit of our people."

He also spoke about Bangladesh's contributions to UN peacekeeping missions, noting that 168 Bangladeshi peacekeepers had lost their lives, and said troops were now assisting civil authorities ahead of general elections expected in early 2026.

India & Nepal conduct hi-tech joint exercise

MAYANK SINGH @ New Delhi

THE soldiers of the Indian Army and the Nepalese Army on Tuesday began Joint Military exercise "Exercise SURYAKIRAN XIX - 2025" at Pithoragarh in Uttarakhand.

Being conducted from November 25 to December 8, 2025, the 14-day exercise is the 19th edition of this institutionalised bilateral Army exercise.

Apart from the conventional training exercise, the soldiers will also be undergoing simulation of situations demanding the use of niche technology.

The Indian Army in a statement said, "This edition of Exercise SURYAKIRAN-XIX will focus on incorporating niche and emerging technologies, including Unmanned Aerial Systems (UAS), drone-based ISR, AI-enabled decision support tools, unmanned logistic vehicles and armoured protection platforms, enabling both armies to refine and adapt tactics, techniques and procedures for operating in counter terrorism environment aligned to prevailing global dynamics."

SC says marriage not broken even if spouses stay separately

UDAYAN KISHORE @ New Delhi

THE Supreme Court has said that the marriage should not be taken as broken down irretrievably just because the parties are living separately, adding that courts must find out who among the couple was responsible for breaking the marital tie.

A bench of Chief Justice Surya Kant and Justice Joymala Bagchi made the observation in an order passed on November 14 while setting aside a high court ruling, allowing husband's plea for divorce, and directed the HC bench to consider the matter afresh.

"We may hasten to add that courts, in recent times, often observe that since the parties are living separately, the marriage should be taken to have broken irretrievably. However, before jumping to such a conclusion, it is imperative upon the family court or the high court to determine as to who out of the two is responsible for breaking the marital tie and forcing the other to live separately," the apex court said.

It added that unless there was cogent evidence for willful desertion or refusal to cohabit and look after the other spouse, the finding of marriage having been broken irretrievably is likely to have devastating effects, especially on the children.

"The arrival of such a conclusion puts the courts under an onerous duty to deeply analyse the entire evidence on record, consider the social circumstances and the background of the parties, and various other factors... We do not find that any such exercise has been undertaken by the high court in the instant case," the bench said.

The woman had moved the SC against an order of the Uttarakhand HC that had allowed her husband's plea for divorce on the ground of "cruelty", accepting his plea of alleged mental cruelty suffered by him.

The couple got married in 2009 and has a son from the wedlock. The apex court noted that the wife was thrown out of the matrimonial home and forced to live separately.

Also, it was not in dispute that the child was in her custody from the very beginning, it noted.

States told to give details of CCTVs in police stations

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

THE Supreme Court on Tuesday directed the states and union territories to file within three weeks their compliance reports in a matter relating to the lack of functional CCTV cameras in police stations across the country.

A bench of justices Vikram Nath and Sandeep Mehta passed the directions after being told that only 11 states have responded to the queries that the court had raised.

Senior advocate Siddharth Dave, the amicus curiae in the matter, further informed the bench that the Union of India has also not filed its compliance affidavit so far with respect to the central investigating agencies, including the NIA. Solicitor General Tushar Mehta, appearing for the Centre, urged the bench for three weeks to file the compliance report. Allowing the request, the bench said that in case of non-compliance with the deadline, senior officials are to be present in the court on the next hearing.

NSG to MHA: Availability of bomb-making devices increases blast threats

MUKESH RANJAN @ New Delhi

EASY availability of chemicals and electrical components is behind the recent spik in the use of Improvised Explosive Device (IED) by rogue groups and elements in Jammu & Kashmir and other places like the recent Red Fort blast, the NSG has alerted the Union Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA).

The anti-terror contingency force has requested the ministry to ensure stricter checks on such materials to thwart threat of such incidents.

Officials in the security grid of the country said that the National Security Guard (NSG) made an assessment following the Red Fort blast and identified the easy availability of bomb-making materials as one of the primary factors leading to the recent increase in IED explosions reported from across the country, particularly J&K.

In its report, the NSG said, "The rise in IED blasts in J&K is largely driven by continued cross-border infiltration, facilitated by both drones and armed militants. Notably, the 60% increase in high-impact, high-casualty blast incidents in 2024 compared to 2023 - despite a major reduction in casualties - indicates a strategic shift in sustaining tactics."

It went on to add that the increase in the number of IED explosions in the rest of India is a concerning trend, "driven by increased knowledge and increased accessibility to bomb-making materials, leading to the proliferation of disruption-focused terror activities".

The NSG is the agency along with forensic experts, which collects samples of all the blasts in India and compiles data based on them in a comprehensive and authentic manner, as it also collected the same after the Red Fort blast.

In the report the NSG said that even as major cities continue to remain under high alert, smaller towns and districts, which are conventionally considered at lower-risk, have also experienced a concerning rise in attempts and successful detonations involving crude IEDs.

Centre to unveil Constitution in nine languages, including Nepali, today

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR @ New Delhi

President to preside over the event as chief guest

President Droupadi Murmu will preside over the function as chief guest and deliver an address. Vice President and Chairman of the Rajya Sabha CP Radhakrishnan, Prime Minister Narendra Modi, Lok Sabha Speaker Om Birla, members from both Houses, and other dignitaries including heads of diplomatic missions in the national capital are expected to attend.

MARKING this year's Constitution Day celebrations, the Government will release translated version of the Constitution of India in nine languages, including Nepali, enabling people in neighbouring Nepal with whom India shares deep cultural and religious ties to access the document in their own language, officials said.

The other languages include Malayalam, Marathi, Punjabi, Bodo, Kashmiri, Telugu, Odia and Assamese. The translations have been prepared by the Legislative Department of the Union Law Ministry.

The event will be held on Wednesday in the historic Central Hall of the old Parliament building, now renamed Samvidhan Sadan. President Droupadi Murmu will preside over the function as chief guest and deliver an address. Vice President and Chairman of the Rajya Sabha CP Radhakrishnan, Prime Minister Narendra Modi, Lok Sabha Speaker Om Birla, members from both Houses, and other dignitaries including heads of diplomatic missions in the national capital are expected to attend the event.

The programme will begin with Lok Sabha Speaker Om Birla's welcome address, followed by the Vice President's remarks and the President's speech to members of the Lok Sabha and Rajya Sabha. As part of the celebration, the Preamble to the Constitution will be read out by the President. A commemorative booklet titled "Bharat ke Samvidhan main Kala aur Calligraphy" will also be released on the occasion.

Officials said the inclusion of a Nepali translation is among the most notable features of this year's observance. Alongside the main event, people from across the country will participate in an online mass reading of the Preamble via MyGov.in and Constitution75.com.

At the national, state and local levels, Union ministries, departments, and state and Union Territory administrations will conduct a series of Constitution-themed activities. These include conferences, seminars, debates, exhibitions, short films, cultural programmes, and painting and rangoli competitions — extending from the Panchayat level to Parliament.

Constitution Day, or Samvidhan Diwas, has been observed annually on November 26 since 2015 to commemorate the adoption of the Constitution by the Constituent Assembly on November 26, 1949. While some provisions came into effect immediately, the rest were implemented on January 26, 1950, when India became a Republic.

'Gujarat model': Note on PDS aimed at making system cashless submitted

JITENDRA CHOUBEY @ New Delhi

AT the request of the Centre, the Gujarat government submitted a concept note outlining a model aimed at making the public distribution system (PDS) cashless and more transparent.

However, implementation of this 'Gujarat model' of a transparent and efficient PDS has encountered opposition from the national fair price shop (FPS) dealers' association, which perceives it as a strategy to eliminate PDS dealerships.

The concept note, seen by this newspaper, outlines how the state government will issue central bank digital currency (CBDC)/ e-rupee or digital food coupons to beneficiaries, enabling cashless, Aadhaar-authenticated delivery at FPS.

The Gujarat food, civil supplies & consumer affairs department has designed the model to minimise manual intervention, enhance accountability, strengthen beneficiary safeguards and improve financial transparency. The note was shared with Sanjeev Chopra, secretary, Centre's department of food and public distribution (DFPD), on November 24.

"These digital coupons will allow beneficiaries to purchase rations from any FPS, and it is a prerequisite step to convert the scheme into a cashless or direct benefit transfer," said Biswambhar Basu, general secretary, All India Fair Price Shop Dealers' Federation (AIFPS). The current PDS system is that beneficiaries visit the FPS and use biometrics to authenticate and receive rations.

In its note, Gujarat reiterated its commitment to work closely with DFPD to implement innovative, technology-driven solutions for strengthening the PDS. The note states that Gujarat proposed to issue 7 coupons every month – 2 for central commodities, i.e. wheat and rice, and 5 for state commodities such as tur dal, edible oil, salt and sugar.

ASI firms up framework to end excavation delays

PARVEZ SULTAN @ New Delhi

New mandate

ASI has over 20 active excavation sites, supported by six dedicated branches

Excavators to submit a primary report within three months of completing fieldwork, supported by fortnightly updates

Excavation teams required to remain on site after digging concludes, to finish preliminary records and compile basic report

Annual reports to be filed on schedule and full project reports completed within 3 yrs

From 2014 to 2024, the Modi govt allocated ₹9,652 cr to ASI, including ₹63.27 cr for excavations

LEARNING from years of stalled excavations and delayed reports, the Archaeological Survey of India (ASI) is preparing a structured framework to ensure that major archaeological projects no longer hinge on individual officers or collapse when they are transferred or retire. The proposed guidelines, officials said, will clearly define objectives for every excavation, establish continuity regardless of personnel changes, and impose stricter accountability across branches.

At present, excavations often run on the initiative of individual officials. When one leaves, there is no coordination and the next person starts work in a completely different way, an official familiar with the plan said. "These are long-term projects and must have defined goals. Once the mechanism is in place, archaeological work, excavations or museum projects will continue seamlessly, and the scope can be expanded or reduced as needed."

A key focus of the overhaul is fixing the weak link that has plagued ASI for decades, the preparation and publication of excavation reports. In several cases, findings have not been submitted to ASI headquarters for years after fieldwork ended.

To address this, ASI plans to enforce firm deadlines. Excavators have been told to submit a primary report within three months of completing fieldwork, supported by fortnightly updates. Analytical components that require laboratory testing can follow later. Annual reports, officials said, must also be filed on schedule and full project reports completed within three years. The Survey currently has over 20 active excavation sites, supported by six dedicated excavation branches in Nagpur, Delhi, Patna, Bhubaneswar, Vadodara and Mysore. Recent work includes the fortified ancient city at Vadnagar in Gujarat, Rakhigarhi in Haryana, and Hastinapur in Uttar Pradesh.

To avoid the chronic post-fieldwork gaps that slow down documentation, excavation teams will now be required to remain on site for additional days after digging concludes. "Surveyors, archaeologists, photographers, they come from different units. Once they disperse, coordination becomes difficult. The team must stay together to finish preliminary records and compile the basic report," an official said.

Between 2014 and 2024, the Modi government allocated ₹9,652 crore to ASI, including ₹63.27 crore specifically for excavations. Major digs during this period, Rakhigarhi in Haryana, Sinauli in Uttar Pradesh, Keezhadi in Tamil Nadu, remain without published official reports. Excavators have presented findings at conferences and in interviews, but the formal documentation is still absent. In 2023, ASI told a Rajya Sabha standing committee it had received 11 reports from Bihar, Odisha, Tamil Nadu and Uttar Pradesh, but all of them were still under vetting. The committee urged ASI to expedite the process and make the reports public.

Astute, dependable and diplomat, he was a great friend and mentor

BALA CHAUHAN @ Bengaluru

P S RAGHAVAN

ONE of India's most accomplished and quietly influential diplomats, Ambassador P S Raghavan passed away on November 24 at his home in Bengaluru after a resolute battle with cancer. He leaves behind his wife, their two sons, and a large circle of colleagues, protégés and friends who felt enriched simply by having known him.

Those who met Amb Raghavan rarely forgot the experience. He carried seniority lightly, with an easy graciousness that disarmed even the most nervous visitor. Yet beneath that warmth was a mind of extraordinary precision. He could cut through dense policy debates with a few measured sentences, delivered in his soft, even voice. For journalists in Bengaluru, far from Delhi's diplomatic bustle, he became an anchor—someone who would listen patiently, then nudge you toward the nuance you had missed. He mentored without fuss, but expected sincerity in return.

Friends recall his dry humour, ability to make complex geopolitics feel almost conversational, and instinctive sense of India's long-term interests. His understanding of Russia was deep not only because his career began and ended in the region, but because he remained alert to the shifting ground beneath global alignments. He brought that same clarity to every posting—from Czech Republic and Ireland to South Africa, Vietnam and the UK—and later to the PMO during A B Vajpayee's tenure.

In the Ministry of External Affairs, he earned a reputation for fairness and steadiness. As secretary, he oversaw India's external economic relations and administrative and security wings with a calm authority. He went on to establish the Development Partnership Administration, which shaped India's development cooperation across Global South.

He often said he entered the foreign service "by accident"—a physicist from St Stephen's who had begun research in electronics before discovering diplomacy through friends. But he brought a scientist's clarity and a scholar's curiosity to a profession that suited him almost perfectly. In later years, he remained intellectually active as a Distinguished Fellow at the Vivekananda International Foundation and as a member of Academic Council of NIAS, Bengaluru. He continued to write on strategic affairs, including for this newspaper.

Ambassador Raghavan's passing leaves a quiet but unmistakable void.

PM FLAGS 'DHARMA' AT AYODHYA TEMPLE

PM Narendra Modi, RSS chief Mohan Bhagwat, and CM Yogi Adityanath during the Dhwajarohan ceremony in Ayodhya | PTI

Right-angled triangular sacred flag

The right-angled triangular flag hoisted atop the spire is 11 feet heigh and 22 feet long. It bears the image of a radiant Sun symbolising the brilliance and valour of Lord Rama, with an 'Om' inscribed on it along with the image of Kovidara tree

NAMITA BAJPAI @ Ayodhya

PRIME Minister Narendra Modi on Tuesday hoisted the Dharma Dhwaj (sacred flag) atop the Ram Temple in Ayodhya, marking its formal completion. Calling it a moment of healing for "the wounds of centuries" and an answer to the prayers of lakhs of devotees, he said saffron flag hoisted atop the spire of the temple was not just a flag but a symbol of India's cultural renaissance.

Reflecting on the significance of the event, he said: "Centuries of wounds are healing, centuries of pain is finally finding a comfort. That unwavering resolve of 500 years is attaining its ultimate fulfilment as the flag fluttering atop the temple would proclaim the ideals of Lord Ram for centuries to come." Striking an emotional chord with the gathering, he said it was the final oblation in the yajna which had kept alive with the flame of faith, tears, prayers, and unyielding belief of countless saints and commoners alike.

Modi, flanked by RSS chief Mohan Bhagwat, member of temple trust Swami Govind Devi Giri, Uttar Pradesh Governor Anandiben Patel, and UP chief minister Yogi Adityanath, also used the occasion to outline the roadmap for a developed India by 2047 saying the country must break free from 'slave mentality'. Questioning the influence of the education system introduced by Thomas Babington Macaulay in 1835, he accused him of pushing Western sciences and literature over traditional Indian subjects.

"Around 190 years ago, Macaulay laid the foundation of mental slavery. We gained Independence but not freedom from inferiority complex. In the next 10 years, we will free India from the mentality of slavery," he said, adding that Indians became obsessed with foreign things believing they are better than what India has to offer. "This is the mentality of slavery which led many to even question the veracity and authenticity of the existence of Lord Ram."

Modi said the sacred flag—adorned with the Sun symbol, 'Om' and Kovidara tree—would stand as testimony to the triumph of truth over falsehood.

'Result of 500 years of struggle'

RSS chief Mohan Bhagwat said the souls of those who sacrificed lives for the Ram Temple must be at peace today. "It has taken long to hoist such a tall flag. You all know how long it took to build the temple—even if we leave aside 500 years, it took 30 years," he said

Bhagwat: Must inspire world to live in peace & happiness

NAMITA BAJPAI @ Ayodhya

REFLECTING on the fulfilment of a Ram temple dream in Ayodhya through "tireless efforts and countless sacrifices", RSS chief Mohan Bhagwat on Tuesday called upon the countrymen to unite in building an India that embodies supreme glory, spreads happiness and peace, and delivers the fruits of development. "This is what the world expects from us and fulfilling it is our bounden duty," the RSS chief said.

Joining PM Narendra Modi in hoisting the Dharm Dhwaja on the spire of the temple, Bhagwat called it the flag of 'Ramrajya', which once flew in Ayodhya, he said it has risen again to its rightful pinnacle.

"We have witnessed this in our own lifetime. This flag is a symbol of dharma. Just as it took time to raise it to its height, it took decades to accomplish this temple. Besides the five centuries of longing, the last 30 years involved tireless efforts. Through this temple, we have elevated values that safeguard the well-being of the entire world. The saffron colour of the flag represents dharma," he added.

Bhagwat said those who sacrificed their lives for the Ram temple must be at peace today. "Ashok Singhal ji must be in true peace today. Mahant Ramchandra Das Ji Maharaj, Dalmia Ji, and innumerable saints, householders, and students have persevered and made sacrifices. Those who could not witness this moment also longed for this temple which has now been accomplished," the RSS chief said. Bhagwat said the Hindu society has demonstrated resilience over five centuries of struggle. "Truth is eternal, represented by 'Omkar' on the flag. We must establish an India that shares this truth with the world," he said.

CM Yogi Adityanath said completion of the temple construction was not the end of a yajna but the addition of another chapter in the spiritual history of country. "Ayodhya has entered a new era, one that harmonises heritage with modernity," he said.

EC asks TMC team for talks on Nov 28, party seeks live telecast of meet

PREETHA NAIR @ New Delhi

TENSIONS flared between the Election Commission (EC) and the Trinamool Congress (TMC) on Tuesday, following the EC's invitation to a five-member TMC team for a Friday meeting over the contentious SIR of electoral rolls in West Bengal. While the EC wrote to West Bengal CM and TMC chief Mamata Banerjee on Monday that a five-member delegation can meet its top brass on Friday, TMC insisted that the party would dispatch a 10-member delegation.

In a letter to EC on Tuesday, TMC Rajya Sabha leader Derek O'Brien listed the names of 10 leaders who would attend the meeting. The list includes Lok Sabha MPs Satabdi Roy, Kalyan Banerjee, Pratima Mondal, Sajda Ahmed and Mahua Moitra, and Rajya Sabha MPs Dola Sen, Mamata Thakur, Saket Gokhale and Prakash Chik Barik, besides O'Brien.

"There is no way we are going to agree to the limit on the number of members in the delegation imposed by EC. A 10-member team would go for the meeting," a TMC leader said.

However, in its letter, the EC pointed out that O'Brien had requested an appointment with a delegation of party MPs. He wrote to EC on Sunday seeking time. "The commission always welcomes regular interaction with political parties for constructive dialogue. Accordingly, the commission has considered the party's request and decided to give an appointment to the delegation comprising the authorised representative of the party along with four other members for a meeting at 11 am on November 28," the EC said in its letter.

TMC national general secretary Abhishek Banerjee said "If ECI is genuinely transparent, why is it scared to face just 10 MPs? Hold the meeting openly. Telecast it live and answer the five straightforward, legitimate questions of TMC."

MAMATA REACHES OUT TO MATUAS, SAYS DON'T PANIC

SUBHENDU MAITI @ Kolkata

WEST Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee on Tuesday assured citizens that the Trinamool Congress will not allow the "BJP Commission" to take away their right to vote, during a rally at Bonagon, a bellwether constituency along the Indo-Bangladesh border. Mamata alleged that the BJP is strategically using the SIR drive to create panic among the masses. "But don't get trapped by BJP. Don't be panicked at all. We won't let you leave. No one can get you out with panic when we the TMC are with you," she said.

She criticised the EC, claiming that voters in Matua-majority areas would be "immediately delisted" if they declared themselves foreigners under the Citizenship (Amendment) Act. The CM was addressing a TMC rally at Bongaon in North 24 Parganas, one of the strong citadels of the Matua community in the state. The rally virtually kickstarted campaigning for the 2026 Assembly elections. Mamata slammed the BJP for using deceptive tactics and luring voters into applying for CAA cards. BJP, under the leadership of Rajya Sabha MP Santanu Thakur, had been distributing CAA cards from its makeshift camps to the Matuas at Tahakurnagar so that they could enroll their names in the electoral rolls.

Remove 'biased' police officers from election duty, BJP's Suvendu urges CEC

SUBHENDU MAITI @ Kolkata

LEADER of Opposition (LoP) in West Bengal Assembly and BJP MLA Suvendu Adhikari on Tuesday urged Chief Election Commissioner (CEC) Gyanesh Kumar to remove 'biased' police officers from poll duty during the forthcoming Assembly elections likely to be held in May next year in the state.

Suvendu, who became an MLA on BJP ticket after defeating the CM and Trinamool Congress chief Mamata Banerjee in Nandigram Assembly seat in East Midnapore district in 2021, has written to the CEC levelling serious charges against four police officers raising questions on their biased roles in government services.

According to his complaint, in a convention of a police association held at Digha in the district recently, several participants expressed a desire to see Mamata again as the chief minister for the fourth term in Bengal. These officers should not be deputed on poll duty when the model code of conduct (MCC) comes into force before the Assembly polls in the state, the LoP told reporters. "I have written to the CEC seeking removal of the biased police personnel from poll duty," Suvendu said.

Asserting that the men in uniform cannot make political statements like these, the BJP leader alleged that the police under Mamata Banerjee have ruined the last vestiges of democracy in the state. Regarding the issue of enlistment of data entry operators for election-related work, he alleged that state government-owned Webel Technology Limited has been entrusted to appoint personnel who will be taken from the TMC's political consultancy firm I-PAC.

The West Bengal CEO Manoj Kumar Agarwal recently directed district election officers not to engage contractual data-entry operators.

One murdered Zubeen in Singapore, others cooperated, CM tells House

PRASANTA MAZUMDAR @ Guwahati

ASSAM CM Himanta Biswa Sarma on Tuesday told the Assembly that one person had murdered music icon Zubeen Garg and others cooperated.

The singer died mysteriously on September 19 while swimming in the sea in Singapore.

During a discussion under an adjournment motion moved by the Opposition on Garg's death, Sarma emphatically said it was a case of "plain and simple murder." The motion was allowed by Speaker Biswajit Daimary at the CM's request.

"They (opposition parties) attacked me asking how I could conclude Zubeen was murdered. But it is in the court's record that this was murder. I now say it again in the House that it was murder. One person murdered him and others cooperated. We have booked four to five persons on the murder charge," Sarma said.

'MONEY MATTERS LINK TO DEATH'

Without sharing details, Assam CM Himanta Biswa Sarma said a "big story" (conspiracy) involving Garg started before the Covid pandemic. He indicated that the death was connected to financial matters.

Without sharing details, he said a "big story" (conspiracy) involving Garg started before the Covid pandemic. He indicated that the death was connected to financial matters.

"We have the evidence. That's why, I told the SIT to first file the charge sheet on the murder case on December 8 and then, expand the inquiry," he said.

As he spoke, the opposition parties demanded a CBI probe, which he rejected, asking them to keep faith in the SIT probe.

Sarma said the government believed Garg's death was not a normal incident and registered a case under BNS sections 61 (criminal conspiracy), 105 (culpable homicide) and 106 (causing death by negligence).

"During preliminary probe, the Assam Police were certain that it was not a case of culpable homicide but a plain, simple murder. Within two days, the Assam government informed the court that it was a case of murder and requested it to add the BNS section 103. After a debate, the court added section 103," Sarma said.

Seeds to stabilise soil in landslide-hit U'khand

NARENDRA SETHI @ Dehradun

FACING frequent landslides in one of India's top 10 most vulnerable districts, the National Highways Authority of India (NHAI) is turning to an advanced biological solution —hydroseeding — to stabilise a critical stretch of the Badrinath Highway near Kameda in Gauchar. The move comes after previous engineering efforts failed to contain the erosion threatening the vital route.

The 120-metre stretch near Kameda, which falls under the highly landslide-prone Rudraprayag district, experiences major debris flow during the monsoon season. For over five years, the slope above the highway has continuously shed soil, rocks, and boulders, frequently disrupting traffic for hours. "For more than five years, the slope here has been unstable. When the rains hit, large boulders roll onto the highway," said a local resident, requesting anonymity due to the frequent closures.

TOP 10 LANDSLIDE-PRONE DISTS

- Uttarakhand: Rudraprayag and Tehri Garhwal
- Kerala: Thrissur, Palakkad, Malappuram, and Kozhikode
- Jammu & Kashmir: Rajouri and Poonch
- Sikkim: South and East Sikkim

WHAT IS HYDROSEEDING?

It is a technique that involves spraying a mixture of seeds, water, and fertiliser onto slopes to prevent landslides. The mixture includes mulch fibres that bind the soil together, preventing erosion, while the seeds germinate to create a living root structure for long-term stability.

Previously, NHAI had attempted stabilisation using conventional engineering methods. They installed steel netting anchored by 6 to 8-inch iron rods (anchors) into the slope before the monsoon. However, heavy rains led to substantial slippage, rendering the nets ineffective. Now, the focus shifts to hydroseeding mulch. "We are employing hydroseeding mulch to prevent further landslides in this steep terrain. We anticipate this method will be effective," said JP Sharma, project manager at RCC Developers, associated with the project. "We are currently verifying the existing anchors before fully implementing this technique, as this method has proven successful in mountainous regions," he said.

Hydroseeding is an advanced bio-engineering technique designed to rapidly establish a protective layer of grass or vegetation on steep slopes. The mixture includes mulch fibers that bind the soil together, preventing erosion from heavy rain or wind, while the seeds germinate to create a living root structure to develop a long-term stability.

The urgency of this stabilisation effort is highlighted by recent data classifying India's most vulnerable zones.

Manufacturers face talent crunch

Companies struggle to source skilled mid-level candidates with the right domain expertise

SANAL SUDEVAN @ Chennai

MANUFACTURING companies are finding it increasingly difficult to hire the right talent even as hiring intent in the sector remains strong. The demand for talent is likely to rise by 10–12% in FY27, as per estimates by HR and staffing firms. TeamLease Edtech says while overall hiring demand could grow by 12%, companies are struggling to source skilled mid-level candidates with the right domain expertise and capabilities.

As per TeamLease's Employment Outlook Report for HY2 FY25, manufacturing, engineering and infrastructure together show an 8.7% net increase in employment for FY25. Translating this sentiment into annual demand, FY25 is likely to see 0.9–1.1 million roles, driven by industrial corridors, EV supply chains, construction, and capex-led expansion.

"If current investments continue, hiring demand in manufacturing could rise to 1.1–1.3 million in FY26, and 1.3–1.5 million in FY27 as industrial capacity, logistics integration and large-scale infrastructure projects mature," says Shantanu Rooj, founder and CEO, TeamLease Edtech.

Rooj adds that while hiring intent remains strong, the nature of demand is shifting. "Firms now seek hybrid engineers (automation, IoT, industrial analytics) rather than purely traditional hands-on roles. While India's labour pool is sizable, there remains a gap in job-ready, specialised technicians. Firms often find entry-level candidates teachable but struggle to find mid-level candidates with both domain and digital skills out of the box," he told TNIE.

The TeamLease report also notes that across all businesses in the services sector, 4–4.5 million jobs are likely to be created in FY26 due to digital adoption, GCC expansion, financial inclusion and growing consumption.

Sonal Arora, country head, Gi Group Holding, said, "By the next financial year, we expect hiring demand in manufacturing to be 8–10% higher than this year, while demand for mid- and senior-level roles is expected to rise by 4–5%." The challenge of finding the right talent is also echoed by industry leaders.

Rohit Thakur, CHRO, auto & farm sector, M&M, says: "While India has a strong labour pool, finding sufficiently trained and skilled workers—especially for new-age technologies—remains a challenge. Hence, we focus heavily on reskilling and upskilling our workforce."

Amit Arora, senior vice president, Trivitron Healthcare, says although the talent base is expanding, it remains difficult to find an exact match for niche skills readily in the market. Manufacturers also point out that core manufacturing roles are losing preference among campus hires, with more students moving toward technology and service-oriented careers. This has contributed to shortages in specialised areas such as mechatronics, AI/ML, and sustainability-focused disciplines.

"To bridge this gap, we hire young talent from institutions across the country, focusing on disciplines such as mechatronics, AI/ML, environmental engineering, in addition to mechanical and industrial & production engineering," says Amit Singhal, CHRO, Escorts Kubota.

Brent crude may decline to $30 by the end of 2027: Report

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

BRENT crude may fall to $30 a barrel by the end of 2027 due to oversupply and the absence of intervention, says a report by JP Morgan. As per the report, oil demand continues to grow, but supply is expanding much faster—creating large surpluses that are likely to push Brent prices lower in 2026–2027 unless producers intervene.

It said Brent crude futures, the global benchmark for crude, are currently trading at $63 a barrel and are likely to fall below $60, then move into $50s by late 2026. The report estimates a large supply surplus of 2.8 million barrels per day (mbd). "Absence of any intervention, the surplus is projected to climb to 2.8 mbd in 2026, before easing slightly to 2.7 mbd in 2027. Under these conditions, Brent prices are likely to slip below S60 in 2026, drop into the low $50s by the final quarter, and close the year with a $4 handle. The outlook worsens in 2027, as mounting surpluses drive Brent to an average of $42, with prices sliding into the $30s by year-end," said the report.

Bharti Airtel promoters to offload 0.56% to raise ₹7,200 cr via block deal

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

PROMOTERS of Bharti Airtel are set to offload 0.56% stake in the telecom major on Wednesday through block deals, aiming to raise up to ₹7,200 crore.

Indian Continent Investment Ltd (ICIL), a promoter entity led by billionaire Sunil Mittal, will sell 34.3 million shares at a floor price of ₹2,096.70 apiece, representing a 3% discount to Tuesday's closing price of ₹2,160.75. Following the sale, ICIL's stake will fall from 1.48% to 0.92%. Overall promoters' holding in Airtel currently stands at 50.27%, while Singapore's Singtel holds 27.5%.

When approached, an Airtel spokesperson said the company is not commenting on the issue right now.

This is the third such stake sale by ICIL in the past year. In August, the entity sold 0.98% of its stake for ₹11,227 crore, one of the biggest block deals in domestic markets. Earlier in February, ICIL had sold 0.84% (51 million shares) for ₹8,485 crore, a quarter of which was picked up by group firm Bharti Telecom.

The series of stake sales has reduced the promoters' combined holding from 53.11% at the start of the year to the current level.

Goldman Sachs Securities is acting as the placement agent for the latest transaction. Bharti Airtel and Goldman Sachs did not immediately respond to queries. Airtel's stock closed 0.44% higher on Tuesday and has risen 36% so far this year. The planned sale also comes as Mittal is in talks—alongside private equity firm Warburg Pincus—to acquire a 49% stake in Haier India, the local unit of China's consumer appliances giant. Discussions are ongoing around the valuation being sought by Haier.

Q2 economic growth seen at 7-7.5% on consumption boost

DIPAK MONDAL @ New Delhi

THE economy continues to be on a strong footing as analysts expect the second quarter GDP to grow at 7-7.5% boosted by high rural consumption as a result of low inflation and GST rate rationalisation.

Though the Q2 GDP growth is estimated to be lower than the Q1 number of 7.8%, a higher than 7% growth in Q2 would still be higher than RBI's FY26 estimate of 6.8%. The government will release the Q2 GDP growth numbers on November 30.

State Bank of India, which estimated the Q2 GDP at 7.5%, says growth is being supported by a pick-up in investment activities, recovery in rural consumption, and buoyancy in services and manufacturing, underpinned by structural reforms like GST rationalisation that also helped unleash a festive spirit that decisively showcased triumph of hope over hype. "In continuum of the good numbers from festive led sales, percentage of leading indicators in consumption and demand across agri, industry, service showing acceleration has increased to 83% in Q2 from 70% in Q1. Based on the estimated model, we obtain a forecast of real GDP growth of 7.5% in Q2FY26 with possibility of an upside surprise," it said in its report.

As per IDFC First Bank chief economist Gaura Sengupta, high frequency growth indicators are showing improved growth momentum in Q2FY26, even before the GST cuts. "Pick-up in rural demand indicators have become broad-based supported by rise in rural wages and second consecutive year of good monsoons. Tractor sales rose by 31% YoY in Q2FY26 and 7.7% rise in FMCG sales volume growth. Labour market conditions in rural areas have improved with sharp fall in demand for jobs under NREGA since July 2025 onwards," she says. IDFC First Bank estimates the Q2 GDP likely to have grown at 7.3%.

Gaura Sengupta, however, flags weakness in urban demand during Q2FY26 with fall in passenger vehicle sales (-1.5% YoY) and slowdown in FMCG sales value growth to 3.7% YoY. The weakness in urban demand reflects slowdown in real wage growth since FY25 and reduction in household savings.

Economy to cross $4 trn in FY26, says CEA

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

CHIEF Economic Adviser V Anantha Nageswaran on Tuesday said the size of the Indian economy is likely to cross $4 trillion in the current financial year. He said with geopolitics in a "huge state of flux", growth is a vital prerequisite to maintain India's standing and leverage in the global scheme of things.

India currently is the fifth largest economy in the world with a GDP of $3.9 trillion. Speaking at the IVCA Green Returns Summit 2025, he said the economy is already sort of crossing the $4 trillion mark, in the course of the current financial year, from $3.9 trillion at the end of March 2025. "So, whatever we do with respect to greening the economy, energy transition, environment, dealing with climate change and climate volatility have to be aligned with our priorities, both in the near and medium term," he said.

Nageswaran said the country is well aware of the potential consequences of global warming and climate change and more generally for agriculture, environment, and coastlines, etc.

CABINET APPROVES $117 BN BUDGET PLAN

Thailand's Cabinet on Tuesday approved a 3.788 trillion baht ($116.7 billion) budget plan for the 2027 fiscal year, government spokesperson Siripong Angkasakulkiata said. The budget plan unveiled last week will see a budget deficit of 788 billion baht, or 3.9% of gross domestic product. The plan projects a 0.2% rise in spending and a 8.37% drop in the deficit for the 2027 fiscal year starting on October 1, 2026. Prime Minister's Office Minister Paradorn Prissananantthakul had earier said the Finance Ministry is working out details of the second phase of the Khon La Khrueng Plus scheme following the prime minister's instruction to support the public. Paradorn said the prime minister is concerned about possible disruptions caused by the upcoming general election, tentatively set for the end of January next year, and has ordered agencies to accelerate work and preparations.

JAPAN

CAN ACTIVELY INTERVENE TO PROP UP YEN

Japan can intervene in the currency market to mitigate negative economic impact of a weak yen, Takuji Aida, a private-sector member of a key government panel, said in a television programme on NHK on Sunday. Aida, an adviser to Prime Minister Sanae Takaichi, advocates stimulating the economy by keeping rates low and boosting spending even at the cost of ramping up debt issuance. While a weak yen boosts exports, it has become a headache for Japanese policymakers fretting about inflationary impact. Yen is down 6% since Takaichi was elected leader of her party last month due to market concern that her administration could issue more debt to fund a big spending package, casting doubt on Japan's grip on finances. As yen fell to 10-month lows against dollar, finance minister Satsuki Katayama threatened last week to intervene, in a shift away from the administration's initially sanguine approach over the demerits of a weak currency.

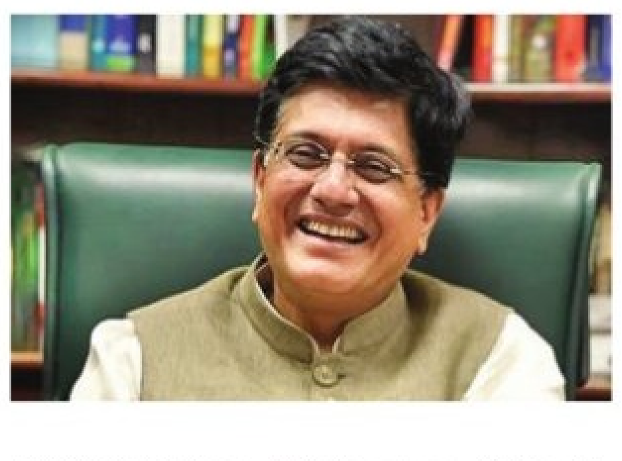
MALAYSIA

JOBLESS RATE IMPROVES TO 3.0% IN Q3

Malaysia's unemployment rate totalled 3.0% in the third quarter of 2025, down 0.2% year-on-year and unchanged from Q2 2025, according to data from Statistics Malaysia. The number of unemployed persons totalled approximately 519,900 persons, a decrease of 3.9% over the prior year period and down 0.2% from the previous quarter. Meanwhile, the number of employed persons increased marginally by 3.1% annually (0.7% quarterly) to 16.97 million persons with employment-to-population ratio rise to 68.8%. In Q3 2025, the country's labour supply sustained its positive momentum compared to the same quarter of the previous year with the increment number of labour force to 2.9% recorded 17.49 million persons (up 0.7% quarterly). Accordingly, the labour force participation rate edged up by 0.3% annually to 70.9%.

European Union allows 102 seafood exporters from India to access mkt

PUSHPITA DEY @ New Delhi



SEVERAL sea food exporters have managed to safeguard themselves from the severe impact of the US tariff as the European Union allowed 102 Indian sea food exporters to tap the European market, Commerce Minister Piyush Goyal said on Tuesday.

Speaking with the media, Goyal said the government had initially anticipated a short-term setback for marine exporters after the US did not move forward on a bilateral trade pact this year.

"Our seafood exports which we thought will take a hit as we have not been able to conclude the bilateral trade agreement. We are happy to note that thanks to quality control measures, we have succeeded in getting Indian seafood exporters access to the EU market after 9 years," said Goyal.

With the Quality Control Order (QCO) in place, the Ministry is hopeful that the Indian exporters have become more competitive and will be able to tap more markets in future. With the EU allowing the export of seafood, there has been considerable growth in the sector in the last three months. With the US President Donald Trump imposing tariffs, sea food was one of the worst affected sectors.

"From April to October last year our (seafood) export was $4.21 billion. This year it is already $4.82 billion. All of this leads to job creation and business opportunities," added Goyal.

European countries have historically been difficult markets for marine products. The bloc had not approved any Indian fishing, fisheries or marine-processing establishments for nearly a decade, blocking significant export potential.

According to the Commerce Ministry, the breakthrough could have been possible only after India's push to tighten its domestic quality ecosystem through a series of Quality Control Orders (QCOs). While QCOs were aimed at upgrading India's standards regime, they also became a point of negotiation with the EU, which was seeking greater assurance on compliance before relisting Indian exporters.

According to the Ministry, the EU nod is significant not only for immediate export volumes but also for India's broader ambition to reposition itself as a reliable supplier of high-standard marine products.

Tata Motors launches Sierra at ₹11.5L, eyes 20-25% share in SUV segment

ARSHAD KHAN @ New Delhi

TATA Motors Passenger Vehicles (TMPVL) on Tuesday launched its 'premium' mid-size SUV Sierra at a starting price of ₹11.49 lakh. Bookings for Sierra start from December 16 and deliveries will commence on January 15, 2026.

With the fresh launch, the carmaker expects a significant jump in SUV sales. TMPVL MD & CEO Shailesh Chandra said Tata Motors currently holds a 16–17% share in the SUV segment, and the Sierra is expected to lift this to 20–25% once production is fully ramped up. He also expects the SUV contribution to the company's overall sales to be upward of 70% following the Sierra launch.

The homegrown automajor is confident that Sierra will connect with the consumers on the back of its iconic design, enhanced safety and premium features. "The mid SUV segment has long been India's favourite, but in recent years, it has stagnated in terms of innovation," said Chandra as Tata's newest product will compete against established models such as Hyundai Creta, Kia Seltos, Toyota Hyryder and Maruti Suzuki Grand Vitara.

The segment recently saw the launch of Maruti Suzuki's Victoris and is likely to see more launches in the coming year with Renault confirming the return of its Duster SUV. Tata also has the Curvv SUV and a slightly bigger Harrier SUV in its lineup. The mid-size SUV market currently stands at about 950,000 units a year, accounting for 40% of overall SUV sales in India. The Hyundai Creta remains the segment leader despite increased competition. Honda, Volkswagen and Skoda also have mid-size SUVs in their line-up.

"Customers have evolved and are willing to pay more for the experience. They want to premierise their experience with more technology, more comfort, more refinement, and thoughtful design. This is where Sierra hits the sweet spot. It delivers levels above what is experienced in the current midsize SUV segment…On several parameters, it even surpasses high and luxurious SUVs," said Chandra.

Yes, the fans will be similar to what we see in franchise cricket but when India comes into the picture, when you play for the country it is a completely different emotion altogether. They are very excited. We have been trying to play different brand of cricket. Hopefully, we continue the same thing going into the World Cup," Yadav said.

Meanwhile, 2024 finalists South Africa are grouped with New Zealand, Afghanistan, Canada and UAE. England are grouped with West Indies in Group C while Australia and Sri Lanka are in Group B. This tournament will also mark a new beginning for Italy who will play in a WC for the first time.

If India play to their potential, no one can stop them: Riaz

ASHOK VENUGOPAL @Chennai

FORMER India player, coach and current member of the national selection committee Mohammed Riaz is confident of a good show by India in the FIH Junior Men's hockey World Cup to be played in Tamil Nadu from November 28.

"We have a good team that covers all the bases and I am sure that the team will do well at the junior world cup. The boys had a camp and now they are having practice matches at SDAT-MRC Stadium, so the preparations are going smoothly and if they play to their potential no one can stop them," Riaz told this daily. "You see the team (junior) is playing for the past six to eight months. So the coordination, all those things are good. So when the players are playing for a long time together the combination is bound to be good,'' he added.

The other day India lost to Argentina in a practice game. "You see in a practice game we try to have a look at certain combinations. We will not field our full fledged team and reveal our strength to the opposition. So from what I have seen, everything is going on well," he explained. India will be captained by Rohit, a powerful drag flicker who hails from Haryana, and this will be his second and last stint with the national junior team. Rohit has been with the junior team since 2022, winning gold medals in the Asia Cup in 2023 and 2024 and the Sultan of Johor Cup in 2022. Some were surprised that Rohit was chosen as captain ahead of quite a few seniors. "The decision to name Rohit as captain was unanimous. There was no difference of opinion among selectors on the choice of Rohit as captain. We also had a discussion with the coach (PR Sreejesh). So Rohit is the right choice," said Riaz.

So what was the special trait in Rohit that the selectors saw and deemed it fit to appoint him captain. "Rohit is cool and calm on the pitch. He covers all aspects while looking at a game and controls the players well. So all these things give him credibility for the job," explained Riaz. Princedeep Singh and Bikramjit Singh are the two goalkeepers in the squad. India last won the tournament nine years ago, in Lucknow, and finished a disappointing fourth in 2021 and 2023. The Junior World Cup this time will be tough with Australia, seven-time champions Germany and the Netherlands among key contenders for the crown. Both Princedeep and Bikramjit have been learning a lot from Sreejesh, who was ace goalkeeper in his playing days. "We have taken the best two goalkeepers in the squad. Both Prince and Bikramjit are good. They can be rotated as well depending upon the situation. The coach will take a call," said Riaz.

Speaking of rotation of the players, Riaz said, "For all these things, you have to read the rival teams and their players as well. It has to be done after completely reading the game and looking at the rival players. It depends on the time also as the first quarter and the last quarter are very important. Again the coach will have to take the right call at the right time."

ANOTHER GROUNDHOG DAY FOR HOSTS

After one of India's most uninspiring days on the field in living memory, attention turns towards saving Test

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN
@Guwahati

WELL, at least there was one piece of good news. Jasprit Bumrah and Mohammed Siraj, usually the two most overworked Indian cricketers whenever the Test team plays, bowled all of five overs between them and nothing after 9.30 AM. Post that, for over five hours, they didn't bowl.

This, though, wasn't a silver lining in a cloud. It was a silver lining in a Category 5 hurricane. On a day when nothing went right for the hosts — surely one of the most uninspiring days of Test cricket to take place in this country from an Indian perspective — by the time the day was done, they were walking wounded, waiting for the opposition to put them out of this purgatory.

Siraj had to go off the field after an awkward fall while trying to save a four (there was no damage done, thankfully). Rishabh Pant, who has just recovered from a fractured foot, got one of his toes plastered by the physio. More players took breaks as they sought the refuge of the dressing room. It was that kind of day, the kind of hellish day this Indian team hasn't had in a long time.

In the press conference at the end of the day, Ravindra Jadeja basically said attention had turned towards saving this Test. "Drawing this game would be a win-win for us," he said. He basically confirmed what many people already knew. The hosts, barring a miracle not seen in over 150 years of any organised sport, would be losing a second home Test series in a year. In Tamil culture, there's a very popular meme. When translated into English, it loosely means 'how this family lived once upon a time'. The mind went to that meme as soon as Jadeja, part of one of India's greatest teams at home and now part of their worst home run this century (if they lose this Test, it will be five losses in nine), threw in the towel with one day remaining.

"As a cricketer," he said, "nobody wants to lose the series, especially in India. So, hopefully, we will try to play our best cricket (on Wednesday). We will try our best foot forward tomorrow. Hopefully, we will try and save the Test match. So that, at least, I know we won't say that we are winning the series. But, at least, we are able to draw the match. And, as I said, it's going to be a win-win situation for us."

WTC implications

That kind of thinking, though, is entirely logical because of the longer-term implications in the World Test Championship. A lot of fans will want the hosts to go in search of the target — for the record, they need a world record chase of 549 to level the series — but that's not entirely practical. A draw will not only give this team four points but will also prevent South Africa, one of their rivals for one of the two top spots, from picking up eight more points for the win.

For so long, this is what India did to visiting teams. Keep the opposition in the field for hour after hour, session after session and tire them out before going at their batting line-up with spinners like attack dogs. It would be relentless, ruthless and thrilling. Now? The boot is on the other foot and the irony is hard to miss. The apex predator is in the middle of the food chain and fighting for relevance, hoping they don't end up being food in a plate they ate out of for over a decade. How did it come to this?

Speaking specifically about Tuesday, it was slow and very painful. Death by a 1000 blocks. Death by a 1000 runs. Death by a few boundaries. Just when you thought South Africa were content with what they had, they came out and batted again. Forget groundhog day. Every other minute was groundhog minute. Every other over was groundhog over. With the pitch lacking any serious bite apart from a phase of play in the first hour, the visitors were very assured. And once they declared, they attacked with multiple close-in fielders.

Wanted them to really grovel: Conrad on the timing of declaration

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN
@Guwahati

THERE was a strange energy in both press conferences after Day Four of the second Test between India and South Africa. The hosts, needing a further 522 runs to level the two-match series, declared that they, at best, would draw the match.

That result would be a 'win-win situation' for the team, Ravindra Jadeja said. Minutes later, Shukri Conrad, the South African coach, said 'we wanted them to really grovel, to steal a phrase'. That particular wording has a historical racism context to it. It (the word 'grovel') was used by Tony Grieg, a white English skipper who grew up in Apartheid South Africa, just before the West Indies came to play a series in England in 1976. It produced a reaction from the visitors who subsequently beat the hosts 3-0 in a lopsided Test series.

Conrad, though, didn't appear to utter those words in bad faith. He meant it within the context of already tired Indian bodies and minds spending a few extra hours on the field when asked why the declaration didn't come before lunch.

"What we felt is that when the shadows come across the wicket in the evening, there's something in it for the quick bowlers," Conrad explained the rationale for giving India only an hour to negotiate on Tuesday evening. "So we didn't want to declare too early and not be able to use that. And then obviously we wanted India to spend as much time on their feet out in the field. We wanted them to really grovel, to steal a phrase, bat them completely out of the game and then say to them 'well, come and survive on the last day and an hour this evening'. So, so far so good but we also know that they're not just going to roll over. We're going to have to be at our very best tomorrow (Wednesday) but those are the factors that we considered here."

While Jadeja had pretty much admitted that they weren't going for the win, Conrad liked to think that they had already secured the series. "Obviously 2-0 is a lot better than one zero, but like I said, this game never ceases to amaze us but I would like to think that the series is secured…"

Barring a performance for the ages from India, SA are on the verge of winning their first series since 2000. How have they managed to turn it around? Paying attention to their spin department and putting in a lot of effort before the group departed for the Pakistan series. "I think the big prep was before the Pakistan series," Conrad said. "We had a couple of days camp where we tried to mimic the conditions we were expecting both in Pakistan and here. I also think the fact that we sent the Test boys back after the Test series (in Pakistan) to stay nice and fresh for this because this was going to be a big series for us. Every series is big but I mean this is uncharted waters for us…"

Since that 2000 batch won two Tests, the intervening period has seen various South African teams win only two further games from 2001 to 2019. If all goes well for the world Test champions on Wednesday, they will have equalled that tally inside two weeks. For Jadeja and India, the contrast will be striking. Both teams would celebrate a draw on Wednesday but only one team would truly be happy.

'Took step back & started enjoying process again'

CHANDRA PRABHU @Chennai

WINNING the Australian Open Super 500 meet has brought much-needed relief for India's premier singles shuttler Lakshya Sen. Having been at sea for large parts of the season, Lakshya ended his season on a positive note by bagging the title at Sydney, beating Yushi Takaka of Japan in the summit match on Sunday. With injuries not helping his case, Lakshya had suffered as many as 11 first-round exits this year. His form picked up during the Hong Kong Open (September), where he lost in the final to Li Shi Feng of China. With three deep runs in the following weeks — Q/F in Denmark & Hylo Open, SF in Japan Masters, Sen seemed to have found some rhythm before aforementioned success Down Under. In a media interaction on Tuesday, the 24-year-old from Almora reflected on the testing times he has faced this season and more. Excerpts…

On the run-up to Oz Open

It has been a great last few months in terms of the tournaments and at the beginning of the year, I was struggling a bit with some injuries and then mid-year, I could, like, be fully fit to play, especially before the World Championships. I had a good training period before that and since then, I have played a lot of tournaments and been fit enough to play a lot of tournaments and compete in them and the results have been great. The last few months, I was just trying to focus a lot on my physical aspect of the game, like, being physically fit, dealing with a few injuries.

On his first-round exits

So like in the beginning of the season, I was really just working a lot on, like, just being match fit and especially with the mental trainers. When I started working this year with them, the main aim was to just go out there and enjoy playing badminton again and not think too much about the results and just focus on enjoying badminton again. That was the main aim.

Intriguing contest

Two high-flying sides, Arsenal and Bayern Munich, lock horns in the CL on Wednesday. A look…

Arsenal vs Bayern
| 1:30 am (IST Thursday)

With 17 wins in 18 outings (all competitions), German giants Bayern have been the team of the season so far. Striker Harry Kane has been incredible with 24 goals. Arsenal, on the other hand, are yet to concede a goal in the CL. In the Premier League, Arsenal have shipped just six goals — the best record in Europe's top five leagues. All that promises a fascinating tie. Kane, who has scored 15 times in 21 ties vs Arsenal, may be the key to unlock the Gunners' stingy defence.

Wednesday's other matches (select - IST 1:30 AM Thursday): PSG vs Tottenham; Atletico vs Inter; Liverpool vs PSV; Olympiacos vs Real Madrid.

Russian barrage rocks Kyiv, killing 7 amid high-stakes US-Russia talks

KYIV

RUSSIA launched a wave of attacks on Ukraine's capital, Kyiv, overnight, with at least seven people killed in strikes that hit city buildings and energy infrastructure. A Ukrainian attack on southern Russia killed three people and damaged homes, authorities said.

The attacks came during a renewed US push to end the war that has raged for nearly four years, and talks about a US peace plan. US Army Secretary Dan Driscoll met with Russian officials for several hours in Abu Dhabi, United Arab Emirates, on Tuesday, a US official told The Associated Press.

Driscoll, who became part of the American negotiating team less than two weeks ago, is heading up the latest phase of talks involving the terms of a possible peace settlement with Russia. The US official, who spoke on condition of anonymity to discuss sensitive negotiations, declined to give details on how long the negotiations would last or what topics were being discussed, but noted that the Ukrainians were aware of the meeting and all sides have indicated they wanted to reach a deal to halt the fighting as quickly as possible.

Firefighters put out the fire after a drone hit a multi-storey residential building during Russia's night attack in Kyiv, Ukraine | AP

Oleksandr Bevz, one of the Ukrainian delegates at Sunday's talks between the US and Ukraine in Geneva, said that the numbers of points in the proposed settlement was reduced, but he denied reports that the 28-point US peace plan now consisted of 19 points.

"(The document) is going to continue to change. We can confirm that it was reduced to take out points not relating to Ukraine, to exclude duplicates and for editing purposes," Bevz told The Associated Press, adding that some points relating solely to relations between Russia and the US were excluded. Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy said late Monday that "the list of necessary steps to end the war can become workable," after progress was made in Sunday's talks. He said that he planned to discuss "sensitive" outstanding issues with US President Donald Trump. Rustem Umerov, a senior adviser to Zelenskyy, posted on X on Tuesday that Zelenskyy hoped to finalise a deal with Trump "at the earliest suitable date in November."

Russian officials have been reserved in their comments on the peace plan. Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov said Tuesday that Moscow is in touch with US officials about peace efforts.

"We expect them to provide us with a version they consider an interim one in terms of completing the phase of coordinating this text with the Europeans and the Ukrainians," Lavrov said. European leaders have cautioned that the road to peace will be long. AP

EU LAWMAKERS APPROVE MAJOR DEFENCE BOOST WITH UKRAINE

BRUSSELS: EUROPEAN Union lawmakers voted on Tuesday to deepen integration of the bloc's defense industry with Ukraine as a U.S. peace plan remains in flux and Russia's unconventional warfare operations rattle the 27-nation bloc. European Parliament legislators voted 457-148, with 33 abstentions, to approve a 1.5-billion euro programme, with 300 million euros slated for the Ukraine Support Instrument. Raphael Glucksmann, an EU lawmaker from France's S&D party, said that the defense program "will enable us to build a more resilient and sovereign Europe" through partnering with Ukraine to build a cutting-edge military industrial complex. "This is key to making sure we can protect our democracies effectively and autonomously," he said. Ukraine's defense industry "needs us," EU Defense Commissioner Andrius Kubilius told EU lawmakers before the vote in Strasbourg, France, without mentioning the ongoing peace negotiations to end the war. "But we need Ukraine's defense innovations even more." He said that allowing Ukrainian access to the EU's Defence Investment Program "makes it possible to procure defense equipment in, with and for Ukraine." EU defence spending will rise to roughly 392 billion euro this year, nearly double pre-invasion levels. AP

Italian Consul General in Bengaluru Giandomenico Milano chats with CE about growing up in Southern Italy, becoming a wine sommelier, the longstanding connection between the city and his home country and more

Giandomenico Milano with chef Italo Bassi

AMORE & MORE

MAHIMA NAGARAJU

WITH two post-graduate degrees under his belt, the newly appointed Consul General of Italy in Bengaluru is no stranger to exam stress, but something recently took him right back to those times: wine sommelier exams. "I graduated in July after writing three different exams, it was kind of scary to back and feel that anxiety," laughs Giandomenico Milano, as a spread of Italian snacks, including tiny amaretti, cannoli and pieces of focaccia beckon the reporters gathered for an informal chat with him.

He adds, "I've always had an interest in wine and the culture behind it. This programme was two years of studying the chemistry, geography and the history of it. It was fascinating."

It's been a busy three months for Milano, with getting settled into a new city with his wife and two kids and planning one of his first major events as the Consul General – The Week of Italian Cuisine in the World. He notes that the initiative is far more than a culinary celebration and describes it as an expression of Italian culture, identity and values. Bengaluru's dynamic dining landscape, he observes, makes it an ideal setting for such a cultural exchange.

Welcoming chef Italo Bassi, he adds, enhances the programme's significance, with his Michelin recognition, deep grounding in Italian tradition and contemporary creative flair.

Sharing his first impressions of the city, Milano says, "I'd say there's no better place than Bengaluru, even though I'm a bit biased. I think we Italians and Bengalureans have a lot of energy and the same values rooted in tradition and innovation." It's this mix he wants his tenure in Bengaluru to embody. He says, "When people think of Italy, they think of food, fashion, art and history which we are happy about but more than that, Italy is also always reinventing itself in areas like robotics, aerospace and design innovation. We recently had a strong Italian presence at Bangalore Tech Summit too." Even though there are just 'roughly 100 Italians' in the city, many of whom Milano has met, he reveals, "Surprisingly, there are also 100 Italian companies in the city involved in a mix of IT, innovation, food and hospitality."

Milano, who grew up in the Molise region in Southern Italy nestled between Rome and Naples, describes it as a 'not very well-known but an authentic place rooted in tradition'. He adds, "I had a very free upbringing in the countryside and a happy childhood but I wanted to see the world. Perhaps that's been one of the drivers to have this career – to connect and discover."

That desire to discover led him to jobs at embassies in Ethiopia, Indonesia and Sri Lanka before bringing him to Bengaluru, but this is not his first brush with India. "When I was in Sri Lanka, India was close so I travelled to Delhi, Rajasthan, Mumbai, Aurangabad, Kerala and saw the Taj Mahal in Agra and the Ajanta Ellora caves in Maharashtra. Travelling gives you flexibility and opens your mind to face any counterpart," he says. However, his favourite has been a recent trip to Mysuru, as he says, "I went during Vijayadashami – the palace was stunning and the parade impressive."

Milano also has plans for events across music, art, and technology. A multilingual speaker of Spanish, Italian, English, and French, one area of interest is language, as he explains, "There are not many Italian speakers in Bengaluru and the South compared to North India so we'd really like to encourage that. We're looking into organising opportunities to meet and have conversations with an Italian speaker."

Has he picked up any Indian languages? Milano says, "I try to include a few Kannada phrases in speeches with the help of my colleagues, but I need to improve! So far, my biggest problem has been with learning the alphabet."

With that, it was time to say ciao (and namaskara) to the Consul General, the sweetness of amaretti lingering on the tongue with the promise to return for more tastes of Italy that he hopes to bring to ooru.

SHARED HISTORY

Milano shares a piece of history that many Bengalureans may not be aware of, tracing the city's Italian food scene back to World War II. "Something fascinating about the origins of Italian food in India is that it started in Bengaluru during World War II. Thousands of prisoners of war were in the country, many in Bengaluru, and some stayed behind to open eateries. None survive today but they offered simple, regional food."

Polish Ambassador Piotr Switalski extends support to school for the blind in the city

SRIYA PASUMARTHY

ESTABLISHED 107 years ago in an unassuming place secluded in a quiet part of Venkateshpura, passers-by would hardly think that the Jyothi Seva School for the Blind has an unexpected connection with far away nation – Poland. This institute, which has helped countless visually impaired children build a fulfilling and self-reliant life for themselves, was started by a 22-year-old visually impaired nun Elisabeth Rosa Czacka, with the dream to aid those like herself. It is this long and continuing legacy that Ambassador of Poland to India, Piotr Switalski's visit celebrated with his presence at the institute recently.

Present with Polish Deputy Minister of Digital Affairs Rafał Rosinski, Director of the Govtech Department at the Ministry of Digital Affairs of the Republic of Poland Krystian Olchowik and other dignitaries, the Ambassador was welcomed with cultural performances, including choir harmonies and a Bharatanatyam performance by students. "The Jyothi Seva Society's work with blind children is inspiring and I'm honoured to witness it. They showed a lot of talent and confidence," said Switalski.

Sr Anitha, the principal, highlighted the school's immediate infrastructural needs, especially the requirement for additional space and a dedicated playground to support the growing student community. The Ambassador also spent an afternoon at the institution and committed to continued collaboration with the institute through developmental aid from Poland's Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

FITBIT

BUILDING A STRONG, STABLE CORE: THE POWER OF CORE STABILITY IN FITNESS

Core stability is the foundation of functional strength, posture, injury prevention and efficient movement. It is not just sculpted abs but it teaches you how to work in coordination and how you can keep your spine supported during all movements.

HERE ARE SOME REASONS ON WHY CORE STABILITY IS IMPORTANT AND ONE SHOULD FOCUS ON IT:

- Functional Strength: Workouts train you on how to do simple day-to-day work such as multi-planar movements.
- Injury Prevention: A stable core helps you protect your spine and reduce the risk of lower back injuries.
- Posture and Balance: Core helps you develop better posture and overall body control.
- Scalability: Core workout can be adapted according to any equipment depending on your level.

Let's focus on some core stability exercises that will emphasise control, balance, and functional strength.

FLUTTER KICKS

- Lie supine, pressing your lower back firmly into the floor, placing hands under your glutes for lumbar support.
- Lift both legs approximately 6 inches off the floor, keeping the legs straight and the core tightly braced.
- Initiate a small, rapid, alternating vertical 'flutter' motion with your legs (one leg goes slightly up as the other goes slightly down).
- Maintain constant tension in your core and ensure your lower back never arches off the floor throughout the movement.

MARCHING GLUTE BRIDGE

- Lie supine, lift hips into a bridge, keeping your core and glutes engaged.
- Lift one knee up (march), then switch side.
- Strengthens posterior chain and stabilises the pelvis and lumbar spine.

FOREARM PLANK WITH TOE TAPS

- Hold a forearm plank (on floor or BOSU).
- Tap one foot to the side, then bring it back; alternate.
- Works core stability and hip control – great for functional and lateral stability.

SIDE PLANK WITH TORSO ROTATION

- From a side plank position, rotate your torso so your top arm reaches under your ribs, then return.
- Enhances oblique strength, shoulder stability and rotational control of the core.

SINGLE-LEG DEADLIFT

- Stand on one leg, hinge at the hips, and lower your torso/extend the rear leg, maintaining balance.
- This is a dynamic stability exercise. It improves balance, hamstring and glute strength, and core control against perturbation.

RAW AND REAL

Artist Satish Menon depicts human kind's existential dilemma in his acrylic work titled 'Longing'

Snaps from Hampi: The Rituals of Time

THE HIDDEN PULSE

Acclaimed lensman Saibal Das' photographic art book, Hampi: The Rituals of Time explores the ancient site through black-and-white film

SRUTHI HEMACHANDRAN

RIDING his scooty into the ancient sprawl of Hampi, photographer Saibal Das let the wind, the light and the silence guide him, his camera always ready to capture the best shots. He moved by instinct, stopping whenever a shift in the sky or a glimmer on stone suggested that something was waiting to be seen. It was a relationship more than a project, rooted in a much earlier encounter.

"My first visit to Hampi was around 2001. Later, I felt the urge to return and truly look at Hampi. Whenever I had money to buy film and the weather looked favourable, I would fly from Kolkata to Bengaluru and take a train to Hampi. Then I'd come home, process the rolls and anxiously wait to see how they had turned out," he says. That uncertainty, he insists, was part of how the place taught him to look.

When Hampi: The Rituals of Time was finally released at Raj Bhavan recently, the moment felt both surreal and grounding. It was also a moment shaped by the support of those who believed in the book's quiet power. Among them was parliamentarian Lahar Singh Siroya, who saw the project from vision to publication. His belief ensured that the photos Das took through the sun and monsoons would reach the right hands.

Das' Hampi was never the Hampi of brochures. It was not the stone chariot repeated endlessly on social media or the famed pillars. "People asked me, 'Where is the stone chariot? Where is the Vittala Temple?' I would tell them that they have seen those things a hundred times and that there is so much more to look at in Hampi," he recalls. What he sought was a more intimate conversation between stone, myth and time.

> The ruins are full of energy and it was transmitted to me, helping me capture Hampi's true essence
>
> Saibal Das, photographer

Across 700-800 frames, shot entirely on black and white film, Das searched for Hampi's pulse. Standing behind his camera, he felt the place speak through stone and sky. "The ruins are full of energy and it was transmitted to me, helping me capture Hampi's true essence," he says.

He photographed what many others walked past. The riverbed of the Tungabhadra, carved into natural sculptures by water that had flowed thousands of years ago, textures on the walls of the Queen's Bath that carried the weight of age, the marks of time and scratches left by modern visitors engraving their names. His frames were full of quiet presences – a dog beside a great crack in stone, a lone tree with a bird perched atop, a lamppost beneath a sky streaked by a jet's fume, a woman in saree at Kodandarama Temple, the quiet corners behind Vittala that most people never see. "One of the hardest shots was the lamppost with the jet plane's fume. That was how I showed the presence of human beings, not just physical humans but their traces in today's world," he says.

His emotional connection with the site began years before he saw Hampi. As a teen, he had read a Bengali novel, Tungabhadrar Teere (1959) by Sharadindu Bandyopadhyay, a love story set on the river he would one day photograph. That sense of romance lingered in his frames, softening the hardest granite. Nature itself often intervened at the right moment. "There is a panoramic Bhima Dwara, where a cloud was passing and the one from Hemakuta Hill with a black rain cloud above the monument. Those two images feel closest to me," he shares.

Another influence deepened his way of looking at Hampi. Das had long admired photographer Prabuddha Dasgupta, but encountering the latter's work changed something fundamental. The starkness, the restraint, the way the late photographer allowed space and silence to speak felt uncannily close to how Das himself was beginning to look at the landscape. "When I looked at his work, it opened my eyes. Some of my pictures were influenced by Prabuddha. When I saw his pictures, I realised I was looking at things the same way he did," he shares.

If there is a single thread that binds the book, it is devotion – to texture, to patterns, to silence and to myth. Above all, devotion to a place that kept calling Das back. Or as he puts it, in his own gentle way, "My love letter to Hampi lives in a few frames. Those moments feel deeply mine."

A still from the film

‘Paathashaala will be a nostalgic journey into school life’

CE FEATURES

THIS week, Paathashaala, a film that captures the charm, discipline, and warmth of school life in the 80s and 90s, is gearing up to hit the screens. Director Heddur Manjunath Shetty, who previously made his mark with Gap Alli Ondu Cinema and Omini, says he wanted to tell a story that explores the bond between teachers and students, blending nostalgia with youthful energy. Produced by Manjunath HR under the banner of MS Square Movies, the film is a collaborative effort driven by passion.

Much of the film was shot in and around Thirthahalli taluk, with over forty local children forming the heart of the story. “Each child underwent careful training, lending authenticity and vibrancy to their performances, and also consists of actors like Balaji Manohar, Sudhakar Bannanje, Kiran Nayak, Prashanth, Akshay Nayak, and Samruddi Kumar”

The music is by Vikas Vasishta, cinematography by Jeevan Gowda, editing by Umesh RB, re-recording by Mathews Manu and choreography by Sye Arun. Carrying the tagline “Odu Athava Odogu”, Paathashaala may appear as a children’s film, but it is aimed at all ages, inviting audiences to laugh, reminisce and celebrate the innocence of school life. The film releases on November 28.

BOB was a challenging subject for a first-time director: Abhishek

CE FEATURES

ABHISHEK Manjunath, known for his expertise in visual effects, always harboured a keen interest in direction. “I learnt VFX to understand the craft better and explore direction,” he says. His journey began under the guidance of director Suni, assisting him in multiple films, including Operation Alamelamma. “I did the VFX for all of Suni’s films till Alamelamma. Then, I started a VFX studio along with Sachin, the director of Rakshit Shetty’s Avane Srimannarayana, which gave rise to Pinnaca Quality Studio.”

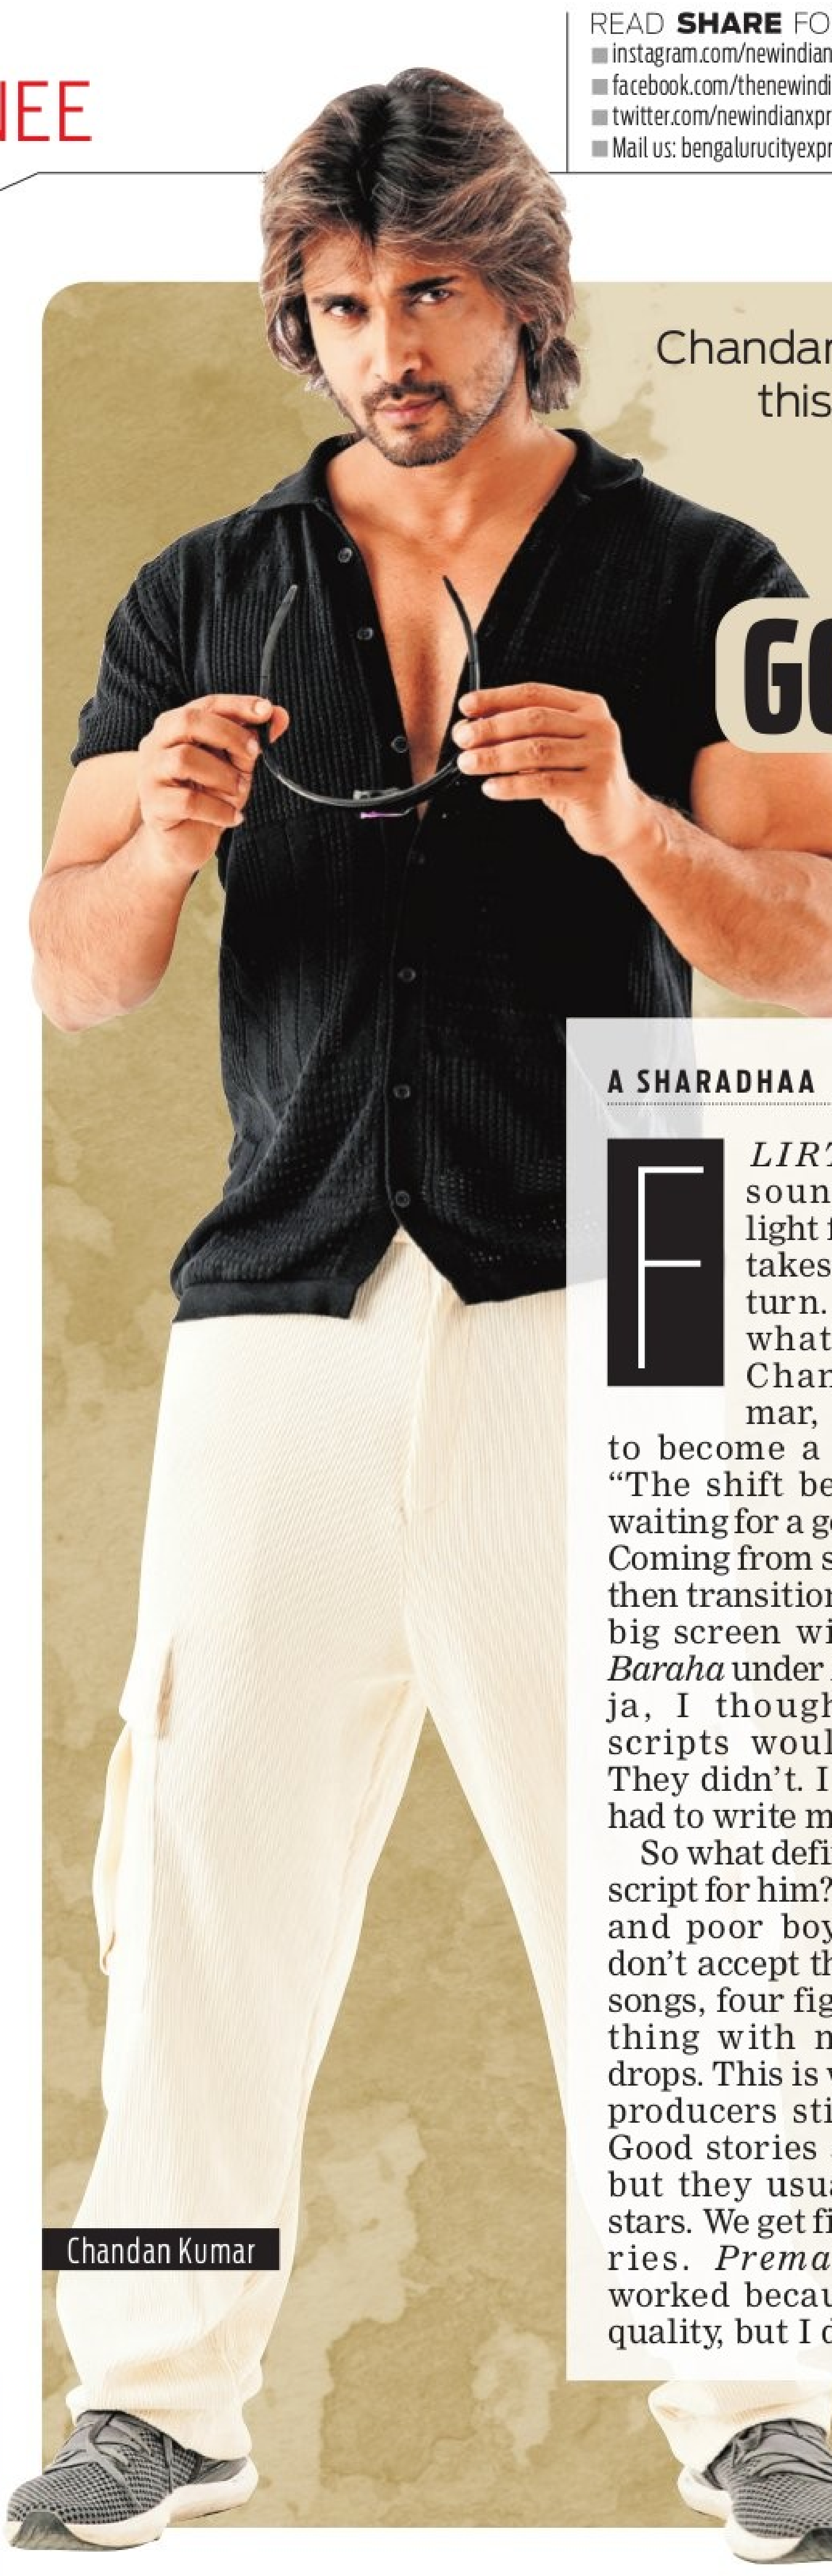
As a VFX artist, Abhishek has worked in over 30 to 40 films, gaining recognition with 777 Charlie, and contributing to Kantara Chapter 1, Brat, and the upcoming 45. However, direction was a path he wanted to tread, and he came up with Bank of Bhagyalakshmi (BOB), which is produced by HK Prakash, and stars Deekshith Shetty and Brinda Acharya in the lead.

The film, which revolves around five amateur thieves in a daring final heist that goes hilariously wrong, hits theatres on November 27.

While blending commercial elements with satire, Abhishek hasn’t let go of his VFX roots. “It was difficult and challenging with VFX in an experimental cinema. We have at least 700 shots, small elements, and green mat shots in BOB. The exterior of the bank is real, but the inside is a full set,” he explains.

On the creative process, he adds, “The subject of BOB was difficult. The film has a huge cast, each with a backstory and a proper arc. I spent 1.5 years writing the film. BOB was difficult for a first-time director, but balancing VFX and direction made it all the more rewarding, he signs off.

Abhishek Manjunath



Chandan Kumar

Chandan Kumar talks about his directorial debut, which is releasing this week, and mirrors his own journey from actor to filmmaker

‘WHEN I DIDN'T GET GOOD SCRIPTS, I DECIDED TO WRITE AND DIRECT ONE’

A SHARADHAA

FLIRT might sound like a light film, but it takes a serious turn. Likewise, what sparked Chandan Kumar, the actor, to become a director? “The shift began with waiting for a good script. Coming from serials and then transitioning to the big screen with Prema Baraha under Arjun Sarja, I thought better scripts would follow. They didn’t. I realised I had to write my own.”

So what defines a good script for him? “Rich girl and poor boy, parents don’t accept them, some songs, four fights. Same thing with new backdrops. This is what a few producers still expect. Good stories are there, but they usually go to stars. We get filtered stories. Prema Baraha worked because it had quality, but I did not get the right subject later. I didn’t mind doing a serial instead of doing a bad film and even went back to television.”

It is then he wrote a story with a reverse screenplay, based on a subject for today’s generation, which was built on hook points, loops and an engaging track. “This became Flirt,” he says, adding, “Darling Krishna inspired me. Love Mocktail was directed and produced by him, and it was a hit. His approach influenced me, and I took this seriously with Flirt.”

Explaining how he honed his craft, Chandan says, “I watched a lot of Hollywood filmmaking patterns, especially screenplay structure. I studied plot points in detail before writing.” Interestingly, the film has a playful connotation to it despite the seriousness in the narrative, and it wouldn’t have been easy to do this tightrope walk. “Does seriousness come before *flirt*ing or after? I built it through interconnected scenes. Even the trailer doesn’t reveal who the flirt is. That surprise awaits the ones who come to watch it in theatres.”

Produced under Everest Pictures and distributed by Suprith of KVN, the film stars Chandan himself in the lead, with Nimika Ratnakar, Girish Shivanna, Sadhu Kokila, and others.

Sharing the genesis of Flirt, Chandan says, “The idea took root in 2019. Many cases happened then, including one involving a producer I knew. I kept thinking, can things turn this serious? They still do.” Another layer in this film is the tussle between romance and bromance, and the actor-filmmaker says, “Intention decides everything. Friends can backstab, lovers can backstab. Everyone has lived some version of this.”

Thanking Sudeep for providing much-needed confidence to his film, and him, Chandan says, “He supported the film, sang a song and even helped in editing. If his presence creates a buzz, that’s good. He is always there for people like us.”

Bicchugatthiya Bantana Ballirena steps into the world of Chomana Dudi

CE FEATURES

FIFTY years after Dr Shivaram Karanth’s Jnanpith-winning novel Chomana Dudi, which was also made it into the 1975 film of the same name by BV Karanth, carved its place as a national and state award-winning landmark, its echoes return in a new form. Bicchugatthiya Bantana Ballirena, a film that draws its breath from the same soil, is now set to release on November 28. Director and producer Anil Dorasamudra shoulders the project under the Dorasamudra Pictures banner, with his brother Naveen Simbhavi joining hands as co-producer. For them, this is not a remake, nor an imitation, but “a continuation of the emotional landscape that Chomana Dudi created.”

The team unveiled the trailer and songs in the presence of veteran actor Sundar Raj, who had acted in the original classic. The moment carried a quiet nostalgia. “This is only the second film to touch the world of Chomana Dudi,” he said, almost as a gentle reminder of the film’s legacy. “Young talents taking up such a theme is not a small thing. If they falter, forgive them.”

Anil speaks of how the story found its shape. “One of our songs begins with the line Ondanondu Kaaladalli. It sounded powerful, and that became our title. Our film can be viewed as an extended chapter of Chomana Dudi. Choma fought slowly and patiently for land, but he never received justice. His son Kaala takes a different path. When he uses the ‘bicchugatti’, the sickle of rebellion, the story shifts into sharper conflict.”

He calls the new film a study of the next generation’s wounds and choices. “Only about twenty percent of Choma appears in our narrative. This film is about whether Kaala and Belli fulfil the dream their father could not. We have presented it in a commercial style while keeping the emotional intensity intact.”

The cast is led by Cheluvraj Gowda as Kaala, supported by Basum Kodagu, Sweedel D’Souza, Shailesh Kengeri, Taranath Bolar, Punya Kotyan, and Gopal Moolya. The music is by Sreeshasth, with cinematography by Lamarinz Nirmal and editing by Anil D and Mavin Joel Pinto. Shot across the earthy, verdant stretches of Karkala, the film carries a visual palette that mirrors its themes.

For Anil, one reassurance arrived quietly but firmly. “The Karanth Trust watched the film and blessed us. That was a sign that we had honoured the spirit of Chomana Dudi.”

Behind the masks

NAMRATA JOSHI

Film: Peacock

CINEMA WITHOUT BORDERS

In this weekly column, the writer introduces you to powerful cinema from across the world

AUSTRIAN filmmaker Bernhard Wenger’s debut feature, Peacock, shares its quirky gene pool with Swedish filmmaker Ruben Ostlund’s works in that it’s a sharp observation and incisive critique of contemporary civilisation and culture, and a thoughtful exploration of the human predicaments and individual anxieties stemming from it.

The object of Wenger’s curiosity, however, goes beyond just the world of the privileged and the rich and the famous. In fact, its premise took me back more specifically to Amrita Bagchi’s much-appreciated “family members for hire” Indian short film, Succulent. Peacock is inspired by the rent-a-friend agencies in Japan, but rooted in a larger existential crisis, the inability to form human connect, the resultant lack of communication, sense of exile and loneliness among individuals and having to take recourse to pretence to plug that vital gap in lives. Giving them a helping hand is a Vienna-based company called My Companion, from where they can rent any relation—father, son, boyfriend, husband—for a stipulated period of time. The employee, who is most proficient in wearing these multiple masks, Matthias (Albert Schuch), believes that “good service is its own reward”. But while donning a new face every day, he can no longer remain in touch with himself. He stops being himself as the fictional personae overwhelm the real person.

The Austria-Germany co-production that premiered in the Critics’ Week sidebar at the Venice Film Festival last year is Austria’s entry for the Best International Feature Film at the upcoming Oscars. What’s most interesting and singular about it is how the writing and its visualisation blur the line that separates the real from the pretence. From being an erudite companion at a concert, becoming a pilot father at a school event to impersonating the boyfriend to help a man get a house lease—it becomes difficult, as a viewer, to disconnect Matthias’ personal life from those of the multiple roles he plays for the others. They just flow into each other and become one on screen. It’s what riles his girlfriend Sophia (Julia Franz Richter)—the prioritisation of playacting and serving others over living and loving for himself. “You don’t seem real any more,” she says. While she decides to up and leave, helping a client learn how to spar with her husband has some unfortunate consequences for Matthias. Nothing helps, be it a yoga retreat or a rented pup. Life goes into disarray, hurtling towards utter pandemonium, even as he finds himself in shambles trying to be the perfect son to a demanding, rich businessman at his 60th birthday party.

The script is smart and witty that moving between silences and conversations. It builds well on situational humour as well as Matthias’ increasing anxiety. Wenger’s satire is great fun and gentle, and agreeable. However, the finale, reminiscent of the tale of “emperor’s new clothes” as well as Ostlund’s Palme d’Or winner The Square in its combination of installation and performance art, turns ballistic with its takedown of the polite society, its pretentiousness, pomposity and entitlement and of people who are like preening *peacock*s.

Albert Schuch’s absurdist turn is the core strength of Peacock. You laugh at him and are moved by his character’s crises as well. From deadpan to sullen to wordlessly indignant, he is astute and inventive in traversing the gamut of emotions as Matthias, the programmed mask-man who is essentially just another lost soul like many others in the world, searching hard for their own meaning in life. Whether they’ll find it is anybody’s guess. Peacock holds a mirror to each of us and the world at large.

James Cameron’s film Hit Me Hard and Soft sets release date

CE FEATURES

JAMES Cameron will have two films releasing in a span of three months. Less than a month before Avatar: Fire and Ash’s release, Paramount had announced that a Billie Eilish concert documentary Hit Me Hard and Soft that she directed along with Cameron will be releasing in theatres on March 20, 2026 in 3D format.

“This is one of my favorite tours everrrrrr and being able to capture it and co-direct this film with [James Cameron] has truly been a dream come true. Can’t wait for you all to see it,” Eilish wrote. The noted singer-songwriter first teased the project during a concert in Manchester, England. Apart from revealing that it would be co-directed by Cameron, she didn’t reveal further details.

“So you may have noticed that there are more cameras than usual in here,” she told the crowd at the time.
